BOTH ANDREWS, HAYNES OUT AS DRAW IS CALLED

Coolidge Placates League; Mellon "Gets" Haynes; Wheeler "Gets" Andrews

SUCCESSORS NAMED

Doran To Be Dry Commissioner, with Seymour Lowman Assistant Secretary

Washington, May 21—The long-awaited showdown between Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, has come and gone, and capital politicians were writing it in their decision books today as "a draw."

LINCOLN C. ANDREWS

Mr. Mellon got the official head of Maj. Roy A. Haynes, the league's pet candidate for prohibition commissioner, but Mr. Wheeler also got Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, the dry czar who was personally selected by Mr. Mellon to put prohibition enforcement on a non-political, business-like basis.

President Coolidge, by force of circumstances the referee in the Mellon-Wheeler contest, apparently concurred in the draw decision. He has upheld the authority of Secretary Mellon in the naming of the new prohibition commissioner, and at the same time he has retained the support of the Anti-Saloon League in accepting the resignation of General Andrews—10 months after it was first presented.

ROY A. HAYNES

Both Andrews and Haynes were out of the prohibition picture today. Seymour Lowman, ex-lieutenant governor of New York and a dry who is acceptable to the league, succeeds Andrews on Aug. 1. At the same time, or before, Dr. J. M. Doran, for 20 years a government chemist, succeeds Haynes. Andrews resigned, but Haynes didn't. RUMOR VERNON RIEGEL WILL QUIT STATE BOARD

State Director of Education Has Received Attractive Offers, Is Claim

Columbus, May 21—An unconfirmed report that Vernon M. Riegel, state director of education, plans to submit his resignation at an early date to Gov. Vic Donahey was current in the state house circles here today.

Director Riegel declined to comment upon the report. Governor Donahey is out of the city. Officials at the governor's office would not discuss the report.

Riegel's terms expires on Nov. 28, 1928. He was formerly engaged in school work in Marion County. It was understood that Riegel has received a number of attractive offers of employment, at salaries greatly in excess of that paid him by the state. Some of these offers, it was indicated, were made by firms dealing in school supplies.

State officials close to Riegel voiced belief that Riegel has not yet determined which offer he will accept, if he does decide to resign his present position.

Streitenberger's Recital Implicates Two Members of Canton's Police Force

Third Man Convicted in Mellett Murder Case Describes Alleged Conference in Which Slaying of McDermott Was Planned

Canton, May 21—The climax to the series of events which have followed the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton Daily News publisher, was reached here today when the confession of Floyd Streitenberger, ex-Canton detective, convicted of complicity in the crime, was made public.

Sentenced to life imprisonment Friday morning, Streitenberger, third man to be convicted of first degree murder in connection with the slaying, decided to "talk." A conference was called at which County Prosecutor Harter, attorneys for Streitenberger, and a court stenographer were present.

The story, which took Streitenberger three and a half hours to tell, follows, in part:

Another police official and a police officer are named as the "higher-ups" in the Canton police department, who knew of the plan to kill the publisher, and gave orders to their subordinates accordingly, which resulted in the murderers having a free hand and enabled them to make an easy get-away.

Held Conference

A conference was held between the high police official, the officer of lower rank, Streitenberger, and other principals, where a "perfect alibi" was arranged.

A scheme was concocted whereby Patrick Eugene McDermott, convicted "trigger man," in the murder, was to be slain, because of fears that he "might talk."

Immediately following the murder, when it was believed that McDermott was still in Canton, it was arranged that Streitenberger should seal his lips with a bullet. The police detective, who was familiar with McDermott's habits in Canton, was to arrest him on a charge of suspicion and then give him an opportunity to make a dash for freedom, advising him to run, if he failed to take a broad hint to escape. As he ran, Streitenberger was to kill him, afterward saying he was forced to shoot to prevent the escape. Streitenberger made a search for McDermott to carry out this scheme but the gunman had left for Cleveland.

After Mazer's Role

Streitenberger's story apparently seeks to put the former detective in the position of a go-between. Louis

ATTORNEY FAILS TO APPEAR FOR ARRAIGNMENT

Search Instituted for Howard A. Stevens, Indicted on Embezzlement Charge

Ten of the men indicted by the grand jury at its session this week were arraigned before Judge Scofield, in the Marion County Common Pleas court this morning, two pleading guilty and eight not guilty.

Howard A. Stevens, Marion attorney indicted on an embezzlement charge, failed to appear and a search for him was started immediately by Sheriff James A. Deal and deputies.

The officers thought they would find him within a few hours, although they were said to be without any definite information regarding his whereabouts.

Served with Notice

Stevens was served with a notice of the indictment Thursday, shortly after the grand jury reported, and was instructed to be in court at 9 o'clock this morning to enter his plea.

He had been at liberty under $2,500 bond since his arrest and arraignment in Municipal Court several weeks ago, the bond being furnished by several local business men.

Stevens is charged with having embezzled more than $9,000 from the estate of the late Charles F. Ritter of Morral while serving as executor of the Ritter will.

First Trial Tuesday

The first of the 13 men indicted by the grand jury at its two sessions this month will go on trial Tuesday morning. Trials of the others will follow in close order, as Judge Scofield expects to have all cases disposed of so that court can be adjourned as far as jury proceedings are concerned, by June 1.

DETROIT HAS EDGE FOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Michigan Has National Gathering Within Grasp, Reports Indicate

Washington, May 21—The City of Detroit has the inside track in the race for the Republican National convention in 1928, usually well informed party leaders indicated here today. It has only to guarantee its promised fund of $250,000 to land the honor, according to some leaders who have conferred recently with President Coolidge.

Charles B. Warren, close friend of the president and a power in Michigan politics, is said to be among those who are quietly working to bring to Michigan its first national convention. it was pointed out that weather conditions in Detroit in June are ideal and hotel accomodations are everything that could be desired. One of the drawbacks, it was said, is that the convention would have to be held in some sort of rink about two miles from the center of the city.

Other cities notably Chicago, Cleveland, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Washington, Kansas City, Denver, Minneapolis and San Francisco are planning to bid for the convention.

After June 1 the old stock will disappear from the trading lists, to be supplanted by the "new, when issued" stock, which embraces the 40 per cent stock dividend approved at the recent stockholders' meeting.

MRS. ELIZABETH SELLS IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Widow of Peter Sells, Former Sheriff, Stricken at Home on N. State-St

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Sells, 85, widow of Peter Sells, former Marion County sheriff, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her home, 242 N. State-st, of infirmities incidental to age. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Keefe, 202 Bellevue-av, followed by interment in the Prospect Cemetery. Lawrence Kerns will read the Christian Science service.

Mrs. Sells was born Sept. 11, 1841, in Middletown, Delaware County, which is now Prospect, this county, and was the daughter of Mary Cary Waters and Cyrine Landon. She was a direct descendant of the family of Alice and Phoebe Cary, her grandmother, Mrs. Esther Cary being a half-sister to the writers. Mrs. Sells had resided in this county all her life and for the last 29 years had been a resident of this city. Mr. Sells, who died eight years ago, served two terms as sheriff about 25 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Sells were married in November, 1865, at Prospect.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Katherine Alexander, 242 N. State-st, Mrs. John O'Keefe, 202 Bellevue-av, Mrs. Mattie Thompson, 212 Orchard-st, and two sons, Benjamin P. Sells, Venice, Cal., and Pearl H. Sells, S. Vine-st. Mrs. Marguerite Howard, Mrs. Vera Koons, Mrs. Daniel LaMarche, Miss Katherine O'Keefe, John Thompson and Arthur O'Keefe, this city. Mrs. Wilda McClellan and Miss Grace Thompson, Canton, and Benjamin P. Sells, of Venice, Cal., grandchildren, and Jane Koons and Jean LaMarche, great-grandchildren, also survive.

BATH ABANDONS THEORY KEHOE HAD ACCOMPLICE

Eighteen More Tiny Caskets Lowered Into Graves After School Tragedy

Bath, Mich., May 21—Clinton County officials today appeared to have definitely abandoned the theory that Andrew Kehoe, dynamiter of the consolidated school, had an accomplice in wiring the school basement and placing the dynamite that destroyed 44 lives.

Statements yesterday from the sheriff's office that an arrest was likely to be made fanned the anger of the little community to feverish heat.

Eighteen more tiny caskets, each with its burden of torn childhood, were to follow those of their schoolmates into the ground today as Bath continues the final tribute to the victims of the explosion. There was 11 burials yesterday, each with its scene of pathos.

EXTREMISTS FLEE AS HANKOW NEARS FALL

Shanghai, May 21—Messages today confirm that extremists are fleeing from Hankow and that the greatest excitement prevails there with the approach of the Yangsen troops and the armies of Wu Pei Fu. Considerable anti-communist propaganda has appeared in Hunan province and the Wu Han forces are apparently divided among themselves as Hankow approaches its fall.

COUNTY FLOOD DAMAGE TOTAL $6,000, BELIEF

Repair of Bridges and Roads Will Cost at Least $3,000, Surveyor Says

LA RUE HARDEST HIT

Rivers in Vicinity of Marion Reported Receding; C., D. & M. Track Damaged

Damage to bridges and roadways in Marion County as a result of the heavy rainfall and floods this week will total approximately $3,000, according to an estimate made today by County Surveyor C. R. Leavens after spending most of yesterday touring the flood districts.

With this figure as a basis, it is estimated that total damage to both public and private property throughout the county will run in the neighborhood of $6,000. This includes livestock losses and property damage on farms and damage in the city of Marion from sewer overflows which flooded hundreds of cellars.

Livestock Killed

The heaviest damage was reported from farmers living in the vicinity of LaRue, where a large amount of livestock was drowned and a fruit orchard valued at approximately $1,000 was almost completely destroyed by the windstorm accompanying Wednesday night's rain.

Several hundred dollars' worth of merchandise was destroyed in the Kroger store on S. Prospect-st, opposite Washington-st, when about 18 inches of water flooded the storeroom.

Quarry Flooded

Damage estimated at about $500 resulted from flooding of the L. D. Brady stone quarry in Richland Township, near King's Mills. The quarry was flooded by the Whetstone River overflow. A large force of men under Brady's direction built temporary embankments around the quarry, using bags of sand and other material in an effort to hold back the water but their efforts went for naught when the torrent from the Whetstone swept all of

AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO YOUTH

Ralph Eugene Gerhart, 7, Dies in City Hospital; Driver Is Absolved

Ralph Eugene Gerhart, 7, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Gerhart, 354 Pearl-st, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at City Hospital of meningitis and pneumonia which developed from injuries sustained when he was struck by an automobile Wednesday, May 11.

The body was removed to Bucyrus, the parents' former home, for interment. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the First United Brethren Church there, with Rev. W. H. Howard, pastor of the local church, in charge.

Driver Free of Blame

Identity of the man driving the car which struck the child has not been learned. However, no blame for the accident is attached the driver, who, witnesses say, was operating his car at a moderate rate of speed and made every effort to avoid striking the child. He assisted in caring for the injured boy but his name was not learned. He had recently moved here from Bucyrus, witnesses claim to have heard him say.

The child sustained a fractured skull and cuts about his face and head as well as body injuries. Mrs. Carmine Cutarelli, a neighbor, who witnessed the accident, said several children were playing ball in the Gerhart yard when the ball rolled into the street and the Gerhart boy ran after it directly into the path of the approaching car.

FORD CALLS LINDBERGH GREAT AVIATION PIONEER

Auto Magnate Says "Lucky" Blazing Trail for Atlantic Passenger Planes

South Sudbury, Mass., May 21—Capt. Charles Lindbergh is blazing the trail for transatlantic planes carrying 100 passengers, Henry Ford said today.

The Detroit auto magnate at his Wayside Inn on his first vacation since his accident, told interviewers:

"I hope Lindbergh makes it. He is a great pioneer. He is paving the way for safe flights across the Atlantic. I am interested because we are planning to some day construct planes that will make transatlantic trips with 100 passengers each. Transocean airplanes should be able to develop 800 horsepower and be fitted to come down either on land or sea. I believe all America and the world is hoping for the best for Lindbergh."

SMERWICK HARBOR ABOUT 700 MILES FROM FRENCH GOAL

"Lindy's" Chances of Making Flight Successfully Very Favorable Now, According to Officials; Has 60-Mile Wind at His Back

London, May 21—The admiralty announced tonight that H. M. S. Maidstone at 2:40 p. m. New York time, (1:40 p. m., Marion time), sighted an airplane off Plymouth, which is believed to be that of Captain Lindbergh. The warship reported that the airplane was flying at a great height, and it was impossible to definitely distinguish its markings.

CAPT. CHARLES LINDBERGH, who set forth on his great aerial adventure at 7:50 o'clock yesterday morning, in a daring attempt to fly from New York to Paris, is now less than 500 miles from victory.

Last reports gave Lindbergh's position as in the vicinity of Fastnet Light off the southern coast of Ireland, and at that time he was heading southeast.

With favorable weather prevailing and a following wind estimated as high as 60 miles an hour, Lindbergh stands an excellent opportunity, barring engine trouble on the last lap of his journey, of ending this historic flight between 7 and 8 o'clock tonight New York time, (6 and 7 o'clock Marion time.)

If Lindbergh arrives in Paris before 8 o'clock tonight he will have accomplished the flight in less than 36 hours, the time which he estimated.

Lindbergh's feat has been marked by his "time-table" progress, as he has touched at practically every point on his plotted route on the time which he scheduled.

With victory now almost certain, interest turns to Lindbergh's physical condition and his impressions of the flight. Hundreds clamor about Le Bourget Aerodome outside of Paris to be the first to see the youth who came out of the west an unknown, to grasp one of the greatest honors aviation has offered.

At 11:50 o'clock, Marion time, he flew over Smerwick Harbor.

Smerwick Harbor is on the most extreme southwest point of Ireland, in county Kerry. Smerwick Harbor is to the south of Valentia the point where Lindbergh had planned to reach the Irish coast, and if the report of his arrival there is correct, the unconfirmed reports that he had been seen at Valentia are effectually set at rest.

Smerwick Harbor is approximately 2,900 miles from New York. At the time he was reported passing over that point he had been in the air for a little over 28 hours, which would have made his average speed at approximately 100 miles an hour.

Smerwick Harbor is about 700 miles from Paris, and Lindbergh should arrive there at approximately 8 o'clock, New York daylight time.

Air officials at the Croydon Aerodrome declared that Lindbergh's chances of making the flight successfully were favorable now.

Conditions are excellent for the rest of his flight, the officials said. Lindbergh now has a 60 mile an hour following wind prevailing between Ireland and France which will be a great aid and may increase his speed well above the 100 mile average which he has made up to this point.

(By International News Service)

Capt. Charles Lindbergh—whose one-man aerial argosy holds the attention of the world—is sweeping onward towards his goal—Paris.

Cape Race received a wireless report from the S. S. Hilbersal reporting that Lindbergh had been sighted 200 miles off the Irish coast at 7:10 a. m. (New York daylight time) today. At this rate Lindbergh had been flying strictly according to schedule and was averaging nearly 100 miles an hour.

From all parts of Europe and America there came erroneous reports during the morning that Lindbergh had been sighted over Valentia Island, Ireland. This report was authoritatively denied by a direct cable from the Western Union Cable offices at Valentia, stating that observers on the roof of the cable station had not sighted Lindbergh up to 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Constant Escort

From the Irish coast it is anticipated "The Flying Fool" will be under almost constant escort. French planes await off the coast of France to guide him to Le Bourget, where at his present rate of progress he may be expected at approximately 8 p. m. New York time.

Crowds are already gathering at Le Bourget field ready to give an overwhelming welcome to this courageous youth who seems to be on the brink of achieving the greatest one-man feat in the history of aviation and sport.

It was estimated at 8 a. m. that Lindbergh had covered two-thirds of the 3,600 miles distance between Roosevelt Flying Field and Paris, if he was still in action at that hour.

Ships at sea and radio stations along the North American and British coasts were keeping an alert watch for the latest news of the intrepid young American, ready to flash his position

ALL PARIS AWAITING LINDBERGH'S ARRIVAL

"Flying Fool" To Receive Welcome; Weather Off Coast Slightly Cloudy

Paris, May 21—All France today awaits the coming of Captain Lindbergh, "The Flying Fool."

Weather reports indicate that all being well this youthful aerial Lochinvar should ride into Paris at midnight or thereabouts on western winds.

The weather off the coast of France is slightly cloudy but there is a slight west wind which should speed the flight of "The Spirit of St. Louis," and if this wind increases it may but Lindbergh in Paris ahead of schedule.

The crowds before the Paris newspaper bulletins increased as the day wore on. General comment was that Lindbergh was taking a tremendous chance. The French are somewhat at a loss to understand this man who flies alone and is nicknamed "The Flying Fool." To the French mind this nickname does not convey the colloquial meaning of admiration which it has in the United States, but an impression more literal.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the French osteorological office announced that the weather in the English channel is perfect, there being no fog. A westward wind is blowing at the rate of 31 miles an hour to speed Lindbergh on his way.

At noon a crowd of some 200 French and Americans had gathered at Le Bourget awaiting Lindbergh's arrival which was still 12 hours distant if he keeps his schedule.

On his arrival here Lindbergh will be given a reception such as no American has received since the days when the first American dough-boys set foot on French soil.

French Tennis Aces Defeat Tilden and Hunter in Doubles Match

Stade Francais, St. Cloud, France, May 21—Brugnon and Borotra, the French tennis aces, defeated William Tilden and Francis Hunter, in a doubles match today, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

This victory gives the French the victory in the Anglo-American team matches, having one singles match and one doubles match out of three matches played.

YOUTH HELD

Columbus, May 21—Juvenile authorities here this morning were holding Ernest Kelley, 17, Charleston, W. Va., as a runaway boy. He was arrested on the streets here last night by police.

SHORT STORY OF LINDBERGH'S LIFE

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH:

Born in Detroit, Mich., 1902, being, therefore, 25.

Family moved to Little Falls, Minn.

Was graduated from Little Falls High School in 1918.

Studied engineering at the University of Wisconsin, but gave it up to go on father's farm.

Left the farm in 1922 to become aviator, having previously been an expert motorcycle rider.

In May, 1924, his father, C. A. Lindbergh, a congressman, died and Lindbergh returned to scatter his father's ashes over the homestead, as desired by his father.

His mother is at present an instructor in Cass Technical High School, Detroit.

LINDBERGH

New York Is Flooded With Wild, Impossible Rumors

New York, May 21—Numerous conflicting reports on the sighting of Captain Lindbergh were circulated here today, many of the reports being obviously impossible.

The international mercantile marine announced shortly after 11 o'clock that it had received a wireless report that Lindbergh was sighted 200 miles off the coast of France.

Naval communications here received an unconfirmed report that Lindbergh had been sighted over Dover, England, at 11 o'clock, New York time.

As noonday crowds thronged the streets today, the rumors about Lindbergh became more frequent and more absurd.

One report was that he was being escorted up the English channel by a squadron of British planes. Another report stated that he had passed over London. still another report had him a few miles from Paris.

Planting conditions on newspapers indicating Lindbergh's success sold like hot cakes, and newspaper boys were not loath to announce that the flier had arrived in Paris.

Will's Sympathetic

Paye Visit to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts and Feels Sorry for Executive Who Must Decide Like "a Good Umpire"

BY WILL ROGERS

I WAS admitted into a very imposing private home on what I would guess (according to my meager knowledge) would be called a fashionable street. The maid ushered us in, said "we are expected," and asked if we wanted to us the Elevator. Being a person who had thought the heighth of convenience in my own home had been reached when we moved the well up near the house, why naturally I was looking for any new improvements.

We went up about the third floor which I thought was carrying things pretty high for a private house. We went into a nice big comfortable living room where a man was reclining on a couch, with a very much swollen ankle which he turned a few days before. There was three guns laying on the floor at his side, Pistols. I thought for a moment I must be in Chicago. There was books of what looked like old bookkeeping Ledgers piled around him. He had his Secretary there and they were examining and pouring over these books and papers.

This man was an awfully friendly, smiling, good natured fellow. He thanked me for coming and said, "You are just what I need to cheer me up."

Absolutely Innocent

Now, with these guns laying there, and him being in such worried condition, and studying and looking over these old books and records, you would think "what is this feloiw going to do, commit suicide or something?" No, he would like to, But he is too game for that. Besides if some of the hundreds of letters that he has laying there are telling the truth, he wouldnt have to. The writers of them, themselves will save him the trouble of doing that.

His life, his family's, his home, this very one we are standing in now, he has been warned might be blown up. So you say, "No wonder the Guy has guns there, and is looking over his Deeds and papers and getting them all straightened out."

But there is 47 other men in America that occupy exactly the very same position in America that he does. Yet he is the one chosen out of that who's 48. He is absolutely innocent. He has never knowingly wronged a person. He has sworn on a Bible to be just, and uphold the laws of his State and country.

Fate is juggling with his destinies more than they are with any man in America this day. Instead of being sitting there in that room with beads of prespiration pouring out on his forehead, he should be light-hearted and out on the Golf links like many of his more fortunate 47 Competitors are. What he does in the next few days (perhaps before you read this) will be cabled to the four corners of the entire world. Not a newspaper in any language but what will have their best man write lengthy editorials on the judgment and wisdom of what this fellow sitting here with these three guns by him will do. He is a very wealthy man. He has everything to be proud and happy over.

As we were going out we were shown dozens of his famous collections of paintings. A new Rembrandt just received a new Romney. Yet he would trade places with any reader of this for the next few weeks.

His Name is . . .

Seven years ago a man was killed, among our vast conglomoration of murders perhaps this man sitting here didn't even any more than read the headlines of it. It meant nothing to him. It looked like an awfully ordinary murder as up to date murders go. There was not a Lovers lane, or a wife or a husband, or a Lover, in fact there wasn't even a Corset in it. Two men were convicted and I doubt if this fellow sitting here ever even read about the trial. Yet seven years later he is sitting here and one of those guns laying there is the one that was used in that murder. Those old worn books that looked like ledgers, are typewritten pages of evidence in the trial of the now famous Sacco-Vinzetta Case, and this is the last referee, or Judge, that is to decide the life and death of those two men, and his decision will be flashed all over the civilized world. He is Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, and he thought he was just hiring out to the State for a Governor, and not to be Judge, Jury and high executioner.

He too the guns and explained to us that he had had all the experts from Manufacturing companies with all kinds of technical knowledge all about the breech block, and what imprint the recoil of a bullet would make on it. The shell found in the Pistol after the killing with the bullett gone into the Victim's heart, showed such an imprint on the breech blocks, and various conflicting opinions as to whether this or that would be the case on such and such conditions.

Studies All Evidence

Then he told us of the witnesses that he would have come there, who had testified at the trial. The wife of the murdered man was now dead, one of the principal witnesses was dead. One man had sworn to one thing and since changed his mind, and said he believed differently now. He is elected to uphold the law, and a Jury of twelve men convicted these two accused, the Supreme Court upheld the Jury's decision. There was a great many things entered into that case that don't enter into the ordinary case. The two men were supposed to be Reds. He has been threatened by death if he don't call for another trial or do something to prevent their being hanged.

Here he is day after day, night after night, studying over all the evidence, examining people and witnesses, trying from the bottom of his heart to get at the right solution of the case. I will tell you one thing, he will never be scared into any favorable decision. From the three quarters of an hour chat I had with him I feel absolutely convinced that when he gives his decision that it will represent his honest opinion of the guilt or innocence of the men. When he looked at you you could just tell the man was striving to get at the absolute facts. I don't know when I ever felt as sorry for a man, and I don't know when I have met a man that made a more favorable impression on me of an absolute fairness.

"Quite a Character"

And when he issues his decision, don't any of you Writers, or readers either accuse him of catering to any class or of being forced by men or conditions to do a certain thing, or accuse him of losing his nerve. Anybody that will say that never met him. He is quite a character, this fellow. You know he was elected on a very unique platform. He used to be in the State Legislature and he attended one or two meetings and saw how Politics was run, and he wouldn't go to it any more. He holds the world's record for NON-attendance. He come out and was elected Governor because he knew enough not to mix with politicians. Then he still wouldn't play their way after being Governor and was Re-elected by a bigger majority than ever.

The typical Politicians don't like him so that means the rest of the State would bank their lives on him. He has caught about half of the Politicians sneaking the Capitol desks out under their coats, and made them bring 'em back. You know every man convicted for murder in a court is not guilty, and on the other hand volumes of propaganda and lengths of petitions have nothing to do with guilt or innocence. But these two men are fortunate in having a man Umpiring their game that will be like a good Umpire. He will call 'em like he see's 'em. He made one remark that will always stand out in my memody, "I don't care whether they were Reds, Greens, Yellows, Pinks or pure White's, WHAT I WANT TO KNOW ARE THEY GUILTY."

CALEDONIA SOCIETY MEETS AT HIGHLY HOME

Caledonia, May 21—Mrs. C. A. Highly and Mrs. A. D. Messerly were hostesses to the Adelphae Kuritoe Society at the home of the former Thursday night. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. H. Harrington, Mrs. M. D. Shumaker presided for the business meeting. Two selections "Bring Them In" and "Shall We Meet" were sung by the assembly. Mrs. Lena Fancher presided for devotions, reading from the 155th Psalm and offered prayer. Reports of committees were given and the routine business transacted. Discussions were made as to holding a mother and daughter banquet but no date was decided on. For the program hour, Mrs. Minnie Anderson entertained with a comic reading and Miss Ethel Porter conducted a series of conundrums. Guests included Mrs. M. H. Underwood, Mrs. H. N. Geddis, Mrs. G. H. Highly, Mrs. Lee Mitchell and the Misses Fayette Geddis and Hope Underwood. The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. G. H. Highly in serving lunch.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

NASH has the power you need on the HILLS

Every Nash owner notices that he has very little gear shifting to do on hills, no matter how steep the grades may be.

Nash is a very powerful motor car. There is nothing half-hearted or sluggish about its response—the motor never "talks back" at you—even though you are climbing mountains.

One reason is the more than adequate power designed into every Nash motor car. Nash engineering has provided reserve energy for situations that tax the resources of other cars, and extend their engines to the point of strain.

Another reason for the powerful performance of Nash is 7 bearings. 7 bearings in every Nash model, instead of 3 or 4, means that power is not thrown away by crankshaft "whip." Proper bearing support conserves energy that older motor types waste.

Quick acceleration — powerful responsiveness—such as Nash provides, is a safety factor you cannot overlook. It is invaluable on the hills, very handy in traffic.

When you select your next car, be sure to see how unfavorably the power and pick-up of other cars compare to Nash, before you decide! There are 26 models priced from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. factory.

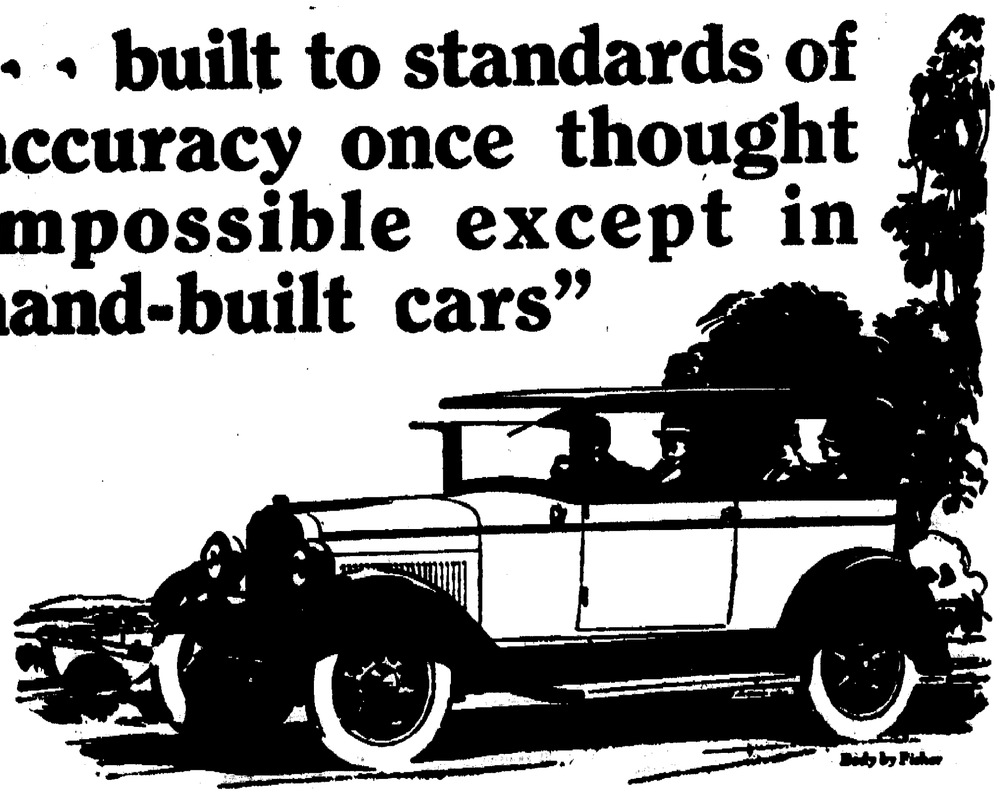
"... built to standards of accuracy once thought impossible except in hand-built cars"



You have frequently heard that the Greater Oakland Six is built to standards of accuracy once thought impossible except in hand-built cars. And perhaps you have doubted the statement, believing that no car so low in price could possibly be manufactured with such scrupulous super-precision.

But if you could see the Greater Oakland Six being built, your own eyes would convince you. You would see piston pins rejected if they varied more than two ten-thousandths of an inch—one-fortieth the thickness of an average human hair.

You would see all revolving parts, from crankshaft to rear axle, being balanced as a unit to such a degree of accuracy that the pleasure of owners is never marred by transmitted vibration.

You would see operation after operation equally unusual, even in a plant where higher priced cars are being built—

—for Oakland is going to unheard-of lengths to keep the Greater Oakland Six the best-built car of its price in the world; to enhance to an even more marked degree its reputation for stamina, long life and low cost maintenance.

In the Packard Eight You Will Find a New Delight in Motoring

IF YOU have never driven the Packard Eight you have never learned how truly luxurious motor travel can be.

You may have driven — you may now own—cars of the Packard Eight price. But we repeat that you cannot know how fine a motor car can be until you have personally taken the wheel of a Packard Eight and put it through its paces.

Whether you are in the market for such a car or not we would like to have you experience the sheer delight of driving the car which all owners agree is the greatest in the world. There is no obligation—if you do not buy we will be more than repaid in the enthusiastic story you will tell your friends.

Just phone us what day you can take a Packard Eight for a real cross country run and we will have one gleaming before your door on the minute.

The great reputation Packard has built among those who want the best the world affords is making this spring surpass even the phenomenal demand of 1926.

And at this time when it is difficult to secure early delivery of a Packard anywhere, we are particularly fortunate. For we can make prompt delivery of a Packard Eight in several of the most beautiful and desirable body styles.

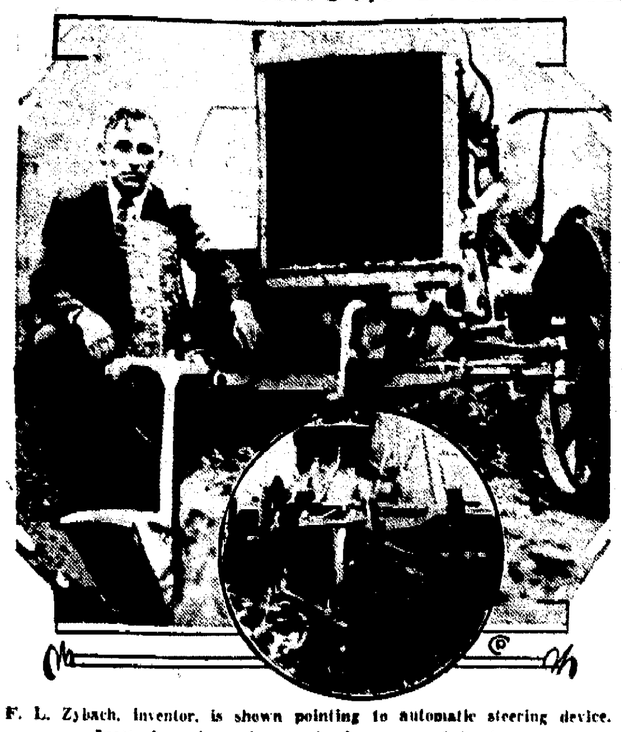
Automatic Plower Claimed to Work Without Man Aid



F. L. Zybach, inventor, is shown pointing to automatic steering device. Inset shows how plow works from rear of tractor.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., May 21—"It won't be long now, Mr. Farmer, until you can go to a movie while plowing a field," says F. L. Zybach, a farmer living near Grand Island.

Zybach has invented an "almost human" machine for farmers. All one has to do is to "crank her off, set her furrow guide, and she'll keep on plowing until the whole field is plowed."

After guiding the tractor around the field once and making the corners round instead of square, the tractor follows a given path.

And it doesn't make any difference whether you've time to look after the plowing or not—the machine will do the work. There is no necessity of an operator, once you set the speed and the automatic guide of the tractor.

Zybach's Secret

The automatic guide is the secret of the machine—the secret of Zybach's future holiday, he hopes.

Zybach, who has been a motor car inspector for the Union Pacific railroad, is 32. For years he has hoped for the day when he could set his plow in the morning, then go to his work on the railroad and return in the evening and find that work finished.

Now, he says, he has perfected that device.

Neighbors Object

He says he has been operating it for four years and finally was forced to abandon its operation at night because his neighbor's slumbers were disturbed by its operation in the wee smaa' hours of the morning while Zybach slept.

The tractor is controlled by an electrical device which automatically stops when the tractor leaves its path or when it has finished plowing a field.

"Set It"—That's All

"All you have to do is to set it," Zybach informs. "Then, if you want to take a rest under a shady tree, or take a run into town, jump off the tractor.

"This thing here will do the plowing of the field without any other aid," Zybach concludes, pointing to the device which is attached to the steering apparatus and the front axle.

GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD AT HARPSTER

Three Students Receive Diplomas; Springfield Superintendent Makes Address

Harpster, May 21—The 24th annual commencement of the Harpster High School was held in the Harpster Community Church Thursday night at 8:15 p. m.

The church was beautifully decorated in the class colors of purple and white. The class motto is "Man's Reach Should Exceed His Grasp." Rev. I. C. Wynn offered prayer after the overture by the orchestra. The salutatory was given by Miss Rachel Green whose subject was, "What Citizenship Should Mean to An American." The valedictory was given by Ross Barber. His subject was, "The American Pioneer." Howard Crawbaugh gave the class oration. He took for his subject the class motto, "Man's Reach, Should Exceed His Grasp."

Springfield

F. M. Shelton, superintendent of Springfield schools, gave the class address. His theme was on character building. Supt. J. F. Swinehart presented the diplomas to the graduating class. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. I. C. Wynn. Bringman's Orchestra furnished music throughout the program.

Members of the graduating class are Miss Rachel Green and Ross Barber and Howard Crawbaugh.

Saturday night, May 21, the alumni banquet will be held in the assembly room of the high school.

BUILDING PERMITS ARE ISSUED FOR NINE HOMES

Karl W. Schell Takes Out Grants for Dwellings Already Started

The general apathy which has marked building activities in this city for several weeks lifted yesterday afternoon when permits for nine dwellings and as many garages were issued from the city clerk's office to Karl W. Schell, local builder. The buildings now are in the course of construction.

Three additional dwellings and a brick duplex, the latter to be built on Forest-st, will be started in a short time Mr. Schell said. The permits issued yesterday call for three dwellings on E. Church-st to cost $3,000 each, two on E. Church-st to cost $3,800 each and one on E. Church-st to be of brick and to cost $4,200; two on Kenmore-av, one to cost $3,200 and the other $3,000, and one on Chicago-av to cost 3,500.

A general optimistic outlook for building this year is being entertained by local contractors and builders in spite of the fact that the boom looked forward to by builders during the winter has, in a measure at least, collapsed. Just why it should have collapsed isn't real clear as a survey conducted recently by the real estate board showed conditions to be better than last year.

administration was simply ousted. He had not submitted his resignation at the time Mellon announced Doran would succeed him.

The league, it is understood, will "take care" of Haynes. He is expected to take an executive job with the league and continue his educational and lecture work in behalf of prohibition. He has been engaged in that work for two years, ever since Andrews assumed office, although maintained on the treasury payroll at $7,500 a year.

It was inevitable today that capital politicians should discuss the prohibition shake-up in terms of the 1928 presidential contest. The prevailing opinion, irrespective of party, was that Mr. Coolidge has played shrewd politics in placating both his secretary of the treasury and the influential Wheeler. During the past two weeks, while the fight has been in progress, Mr. Mellon and Mr. Wheeler have almost passed each other as they came and went from the president's office.

The placating of the league assumes a pronounced significance in view of the action of its executive committee yesterday in publicly announcing that it is out to "get" Al Smith of New York, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and Sen. James A. Reed of Missouri, the three men who are at present the most outstanding candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.

If any of this trio wins the Democratic nomination the unequivocal support of the Anti-Saloon League for the Republican candidate is assured. The only Republican whose nomination would be as unsatisfactory to the league as Smith, Ritchie or Reed on the Democratic side, would be Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and nobody assumes that he has any chance, irrespective of whether Calvin Coolidge is or is not a candidate for another term.

the barrier away within a few minutes.

Workmen are now at the quarry operating pumps and several days will be required to remove the flood water.

About a year ago the same quarry was flooded when a crevasse opened between it and the river and to remedy this situation a temporary dam was built to change the course of the Whetstone.

Rivers Receding

Rivers of the county, which rose to flood stage and overflowed in many places following Wednesday night's downpour, are now rapidly receding and danger of further damage is past.

The Scioto River in the vicinity of Newman's bridge and Prospect began to fall shortly after midnight last night and at 9 o'clock this morning had dropped about six inches.

At its crest stage the river there was almost three feet below the highest mark reached in the year's first flood several weeks ago.

Traffic Halted

Through traffic on the C., D. & M. was halted yesterday morning when a small washout was discovered along the track between Newman's and Prospect. During the remainder of yesterday passpassengers were transferred to hacks at Prospect and conveyed over the Marion-Marysville-rd to Newman's where connections were made with a car operated out of Marion.

This arrangement was continued this morning with prospects of through service being resumed by noon, when it was expected water would be entirely off the tracks and the washout repaired.

Superintendent Moyer of the C., D. & M., said it probably would have been safe to operate cars between Prospect and Newman's as the washout was not serious. The company decided to take no chances, however, and put the transfer system into effect. Freight cars were run over the submerged track without mishap or serious delay.

Morrow County Loss

Property damage in Morrow County was much heavier than in Marion County, 10 bridges having been washed out there, according to the latest report.

In Marion County there were only three bridge washouts which will necessitate replacement or extensive repairs, Surveyor Leavens states. Two were south of LaRue on the Winnemac and Linwood-pks and the other was about a half-mile south of Meeker on the Meeker-Agosta-rd. Temporary bridges have been constructed on the Winnemac and Linwood-rds and these thoroughfares are now open to traffic.

Road May Be Closed

There is probability that the Meeker-Agosta-rd will be closed several weeks as practically complete reconstruction of the bridge will be necessary. Plans for the work are to be decided upon by the commissioners Monday.

The most serious road washout occurred on the boundary road between Hardin and Marion Counties, leading south from the Harding Highway. The entire surfacing of this road, built about a year ago, was swept into the ditch by the force of the rainfall.

Appointments made in probate court today are: W. E. Sergent, administrator of the estate of Alfreda Sergent and William J. Weisseise, administrator of the estate of Bertha M. Weisseise.

Seeks Divorce

A divorce suit was filed in the Marion County Common Pleas Court yesterday by Mae Woods against W. H. Woods.

In her petition Mrs. Woods charges that on different occasions Woody was absent from home until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning and that she had no knowledge of his whereabouts.

Other allegations, charging Woods with gross neglect and extreme cruelty, appear in the petition. His wife alleges that he cursed her frequently, ordered her away from home on numerous occasions and gave her none of the proceeds from their poultry and egg production, compelling her to depend upon her son for funds.

On May 17, 1927, she states, Woods took her to the son's home in Richwood and left her there, telling her never to return.

They were married in Marysville on March 23, 1926 and have no children, the son to whom Mrs. Sells refers in the petition being her child by a former marriage.

Woods, so his wife states, owns 35 acres of land in Montgomery Township, a large amount of farm equipment and chattels, and a house and lot in Richwood.

She asks for divorce and alimony and also for a temporary injunction restraining her husband from disposing of his property or encumbering it during pendency of her suit. The injunction was granted by Judge Scofield shortly after the petition was filed.

F. LeRoy Allen of Richwood is attorney for Mrs. Woods.

Foreclosure Decreed

A decree of foreclosure and order of sale have been issued by Judge Scofield in the suit of the West Side Banking Co. against Perry D. Brady and others, brought to marshal liens standing against the defendants' property.

NEW FUNERAL HOME AND PARLORS OPENED HERE

Fred W. Dillon, funeral director, formerly of Dillon & Glass, Galion, and formerly with Cunningham's funeral parlors, Akron, today announced the opening of his funeral home at 841 S. Prospect-st and also parlors at the corner of Woodrow and Davida-st.

The funeral home on S. Prospect-st, has in addition to the home-like parlors, an attractive and completely equipped chapel where funeral services may be conducted. Mr. Dillon also has a completely motorized funeral and ambulance equipment affording up-to-date service.

Mr. Dillon came to Marion a few weeks ago from Galion, following the dissolution of the firm of Dillon & Glass. Prior to going to Galion he was associated with Cunningham's Akron, for 10 years.

TWO ACTIONS INVOLVNG ACCIDENT DISMISSED

Two actions growing out of an automobile collision on the Delaware-pk March 5, were dismissed by Judge Martin in municipal court yesterday afternoon for lack of evidence. The first action was brought by Blaine Fulton who asked for $215 damage to his automobile as the result of a collision with a car being driven by David A. Wilson, near Waldo on March 5, and which Fulton was charged was due to carelessness on the part of Wilson.

In his answer and cross petition, Wilson asked for $495 for damages to his car, which he said was due to the carelessness of Fulton. Declaring it to be a 50-50 proposition, both cases were dismissed by court.

He faces two indictments, one shooting with intent to kill and assault with intent to rob and the other carrying concealed weapons. He pleaded guilty to the concealed weapon charge and not guilty to the other.

Dye and Leslie J. West, alias John Walker, of Prospect, accused of forgery, were indicted at the first session of the grand jury on May 9.

The other 11 were indicted at the final jury session Wednesday of this week.

Six Deny Charges

In the arraignment today, six of the eight men held as members of the farm robbery band which operated in Marion County for almost a year pleaded not guilty and the two others pleaded guilty. All were indicted for grand larceny and receiving and concealing stolen property.

Those pleading guilty were Lester Bird and Edward "Soapy" Shafer, and pleas of not guilty were made by Paul Bird, brother of Lester, James Henry, John Kurts, Clyde Rogers, William C. "Shorty" Longfellow and Orville Gibson.

Pearl McAdams pleaded not guilty to two indictments, one charging him with automobile stealing and the other carrying concealed weapons. Raymond Needles, arrested in connection with the McAdams case, pleaded not guilty to buying and concealing a stolen auto and carrying concealed weapons. They are accused of having been implicated in the theft of a Chevrolet sedan from William B. Strayer, city safety director.

VERNON M. RIEGEL IS DEDICATION SPEAKER

State Director of Education Gives Main Address at Pleasant School Program

Characterizing the work of the last year as a culmination of school progress in the township, Vernon M. Riegel, state director of education, delivered the address at the dedication exercises at Pleasant Township School Thursday night. The speaker commented on the marked progress made by the school in the last decade. An attendance of more than 400 greeted the speaker.

The commencement exercises which were part of the program, was the first to be held in the new building. According to school officials the school has more than doubled its orginial capacity and nearly doubled its enrollment of six years ago. The commencement address was delivered by Senator Paul Herbert, of Columbus, who declared "the church, school and home, the three greatest American institutions and that upon their preservation depends the future of civilization."

The school closed its activities of the year Friday with a picnic held in the school building, attended by approximately 600. The eighth grade commencement program which included music class numbers and a two-act play was held in the morning. At noon a lunch was served and the afternoon was given over to out door sports.

The picnic closed with the presentation of a fountain pen and pencil set to Supt. J. M. Diley by members of the senior class.

EXPECT 200 TO ATTEND SHOVEL CLUB PICNIC

First Outing Held at Clubhouse on Olentangy River Bank

Two hundred members of the Marion Steam Shovel Club were expected to take part in the opening event of the season at the clubhouse of the organization this afternoon, when office and shop employes connected with the club joined in a picnic and outing. The clubhouse is located in Richland Township on the banks of the Olentangy River.

A baseball game and horseshoe contests were to feature the entertainment of the afternoon, with all taking part. The meeting was to close with a picnic dinner. Frank Carroll, president of the club, is in charge of the arrangements.

The club will take part in a number of similar picnics during the summer months.

STREITENBERGER

Mazer, jointly indicted in the crime and star witness during the Streitenberger trial, claimed this role for himself when he turned state's evidence.

Streitenberger relates that the high police official and Mazer were the original plotters and that he (Streitenberger) came into the scheme merely as a sort of pawn, for carrying on the negotiations between the pair, later arranging the so-called "smoke screen" to cover up the guilty after the murder was committed.

While the story connects the high police official with the murder as an active plotter, it brings the lower officer into the conspiracy as a willing assistant who took an active part in arranging the alibi to be used in case any of the conspirators were arrested after the murder.

The Passing of Maurice.

Maurice Oscar Louis Mouvet—"Maurice," the world-famous dancer — succumbed to tuberculosis, Wednesday evening, in Lausanne, on beautiful Lake Geneva, Switzerland, where he had gone in the hope of recuperating his health.

Born in New York City, of Belgian parentage, life was a struggle to young Mouvet till he "arrived" one night in Monte Carlo some eighteen years ago.

To "Maurice" must be given that credit which ever goes to those who reach the top of their class. He transformed the means of making a livelihood into an art, and gave pleasure to thousands in both hemispheres. He was a gentleman in every sense of the word, an honor to the amusement world, and he passes in the prime of his life—he was but thirty-eight—regretted by all who knew him as a skilled and graceful exponent of his profession.

The American Legion.

Basing its contention on a survey which it claims it has made in forty-four states of the union, in twenty-seven of which it alleges "repressive tactics" are employed, the American Civil Liberties union in a report given out in New York City for publication, charges the American legion with being "the most active agency of intolerance and repression" in the country. Not content with this, it further charges that "many of the attacks on freedom of speech have been traced to propaganda emanating from the war department, the American legion and other patriotic societies."

These groups, "together with the Bible crusaders and other fundamentalist organizations," the report goes on to say in that portion of it dealing with the educational situation, are responsible also for the inroads on the freedom of teaching. Suppression of student publications, dismissals of teachers and students for expressions of opinion, enforced military drill, compulsory Bible reading laws, the "Salute-the-Flag" regulations, and one new anti-evolution law, in Mississippi, mark the course of their campaign of repression and intolerance in 1926.

All of us are familiar with the sense of the quotation regarding those we love for the enemies they have made. Its sentiment is particularly apropos in the present case. If we had no other ground for esteem for the American legion, the fact that it has aroused the enmity of the American Civil Liberties union would endear it to us.

The hostility of the Civil Liberties union toward the American legion is not so much due to what the legion does, but rather to what it is. The American legion, as a patriotic organization, is anathema to an organization, which is quite generally held to be unpatriotic. The American legion, which fought for its country, is naturally a thing held accursed by an organization which opposed the policies of our country's government. The American legion is a supporter of government, a believer in the upholding of law and order along the lines enunciated by our federal government and the governments of our state commonwealths, while the American Civil Liberties union has almost invariably cast its support and rendered aid and comfort to those who are not only opposed to our government, but also to all government, those who are seeking to overcome all government and substitute the chaos of anarchy—such conditions as obtain in soviet Russia—for law and order, peace and comfort, thrift and prosperity.

The American legion has the respect and esteem of the great mass of the representative citizenship of the country, which the Civil Liberties union lacks. It stands for America, American government, American principles and American ideals, and against pacificism, internationalism, murder, rapine, atheism, communism, bolshevism, anarchy, sedition, treason and the overthrowing of government. Being what it is, standing for what it does, it is to be understood that it has the ill-will of that element of our citizenship which allies itself with the alien element within our borders which devotes its utmost endeavors to the hamstringing of our government in time of war and in time of peace plots to accomplish its overthrow. Being such an organization as it is, it is not to be expected that the American legion can have the good will of the American Civil Liberties union, which, by plan or the fortunes of chance, has so often been associated with an element, or the leaders of all element, opposed to all that for which the American legion stands.

For some reason or other, the fellow who is ever crying for "personal liberty" and resenting prohibition strikes us as a sort of a twin brother to the fellow who denounces and resists vaccination against smallpox.

Virtue in Soap and Water.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

While a bootblack was cleaning my shoes the other day I got to wondering if he was doing it the right way. Far be it from me to criticize the other fellow for the manner in which he does his particular job. He ought to know his work just as well as I do mine and know it better.

But why shouldn't a brown shoe be washed with soap and water and thoroughly cleaned before the shoe polish is applied? Why should the dressing be put on over the dirt and stain of the street?

I wish some leather expert or shoe expert would tell me what he thinks about it.

But I do know that girls who apply powder and cosmetics to an unclean skin are doing a poor job if they would preserve their beauty. Soap, and water, plenty of both, should be used freely, very freely, at least twice a day. With a soft cloth all the stain and dust and dirt are washed away in the water.

There are germs in the air and germs in the dirt you accumulate. It is important to get rid of just as many germs as you can and leave the skin as clean as possible.

If the pores of your skin are inclined to fill up with the natural secretions and with dirt, you need more washing. If the face is muddy and colorless, the alternate use of warm and cold water will stimulate the circulation and improve the texture of the skin.

Don't imagine, however, that soap and water alone will cleanse the skin. There are astringent solutions, the basis of which is alcohol, which complete the cleansing process.

But to remove all the natural oils from the surface would be likely to leave the skin dry, sensitive and ready to chap and crack, even in mild weather. That is why well-prepared cold creams are really beneficial.

Carry out this program night and morning, and then if you use cosmetics temperately, you won't suffer. But I beg of you to keep the skin clean.

Of course you can not have a "good complexion" unless you eat correctly. You must avoid excessive consumption of sugar, fats and starches. Plenty of fruits and vegetables, especially the leafy vegetables, are important foods. Drink lots of water and, if you like it, drink milk with your meals.

There must be brisk exercise every day, enough to cause free perspiration. This will help to cleanse the skin.

A clean, glowing skin will do as much to insure your success in life as almost any other factor.

JOURNALISTIC EXPLOITATION OF CRIME.

It is the proper business of newspapers to print the news of the day and time fully and accurately, whether that news happens to be disagreeable or pleasant. But there also is such a thing as decent ethics, and every self-respecting publication with a sense of duty toward its readers ought to bar flamboyant exploitation of inconsequential persons who have been convicted of notorious crime. Newspapers that print highly colored interviews, sketches and "biographies" manufactured or secured from notorious criminals by clever reporters who have appealed successfully to the cupidity of these persons, or to their love of notoriety, commit a serious public offense.

To get "down to cases," in our own town, rival afternoon journals are at this moment preparing to "feature" the principals in two much advertised murders, one committed in Massachusetts, the other in New York; and in the latter instance, the woman involved unquestionably has been induced to lend herself to exploitation by her vanity and her love for sensation. Such stories as these about to be inflicted on the Detroit public are one of the reasons why the press labors under disrepute. They are in no sense legitimate; they are purely manufactured "news" or "features" and they have a bad effect on weak minds, and frequently excite persons of meager intellect and unstable emotions until they are tempted to commit heinous offenses in order that they too may get into the yellow press lime light. It is to be feared that first and last, the sensational journal is responsible for considerable indirect crime.

There also are newspapers, and unfortunately Detroit harbors one of the sort, which in order to get lurid matter for their columns systematically undertake to use the machinery of justice in order to make it. They sensationalize cases on the strength of the flimsiest sort of testimony which they magnify and inflate out of all resemblance to fact; and sometimes they create so much smoke and clamor that in one way or another, they actually force authorities to take action contrary to their best judgment and belief. For the sake of what they miscall news, these publications unhesitatingly put the public to material expense, and impose severe injury and mental suffering on victims who may be entirely innocent of any wrong-doings.

Occasionally too, such publications take it into their heads to go on the opposite tack. Then they make themselves the champions of notorious criminals, doing their best to hamper and thwart officers who are trying to enforce law and abusing them as though they were the criminals. Newspapers such as these have neither conscience nor human feeling; and obviously they have no principle.

Of course the printing of the sort of stuff we have been describing builds up circulation in certain fields. But there are other things in journalism beside circulation. There is for instance the responsibility toward society which every honest person ought to feel, and which ought to be particularly strong in a newspaper office because in a very direct way a newspaper occupies a position of public trust and potential usefulness.—Detroit Free Press.

CRITICISING THE GOVERNMENT.

Some recent utterances of President Coolidge are being interpreted, apparently, in a sense which he could never have intended. He could not have meant to be understood as holding that all acts of the government, even in foreign affairs, should be considered as subject to no criticism. We may take it for granted that if by any possibility a law putting an absolute prohibition on such criticism were to get through congress, President Coolidge's veto would be interposed to keep it off the statute books. No part of the special legislation enacted to meet the emergencies of the World war made even a close approach to such a prohibition, and criticism of President Wilson's every act was freely uttered from the time the war began until it ended.

Much of this criticism of the government's policies during the war was not constructive in its purpose, nor was it sincere in its claim to be in defense of the people's rights. It was merely an attempt to impede the government in its plans and purposes, and sprang from motives which would not have looked well in print, and which the critics themselves were very careful not to put into print. What has nettled the president in criticism of the government's foreign policies at the present time is not the mere fact of criticism, if honestly and constructively intended, but the presence in too many quarters of the type of criticism which seems to assume that the government is always in the wrong, and which is perfectly willing to hamper it in the conduct of the most delicate matters of our foreign relations, without any regard to the effect of such cavilling on international good will, or even on the world's peace. What he wants is not the hushing of every voice that might differ from the government in opinion, but a spirit of genuine loyalty and a conscientious sense of responsibility behind the voice.—Columbus Dispatch.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

There is a little river in an eastern state which is not wide, deep or impressive. It is little more than a trickling stream flowing through wide meadows.

But there is one thing that makes it different from most other rivers. Twice a day the tide from the ocean rolls up into the river. The tide gives it new depth and breadth and power.

The lives of most of us are like little rivers—until a great purpose comes along into our lives. Some worthy cause to support, some earnest, honest task to be done is like a tide that gives breadth and depth and power to our lives.

Journalists, advertising salesmen and statesmen talk much about "the public." Who and what is the public? We all talk glibly about the public—and know little about it. Who are these multitudes that live in houses and walk the common road to work—or ride on street cars and in automobiles?

Beware of getting your ideas about the public from your cronies in the club.

Beware of getting your ideas about the public from your fellow-deacons in church.

Beware of getting your ideas about people out of books.

To find out about the public you have to do a lot of mixing in a lot of different places. You have to go where people live—in the largest quantity—and ask many questions and do much listening.

Letter-writing is the friendly art. Despite the bulk of the United States mail the fact is most of us write too few letters. We do not write too few of the sort that begin, "Yours of the 18th received and contents noted." There is nothing friendly or artistic about letters of that sort. But we overlook too many opportunities to be kind and considerate, gentle and courteous through letters. The most charming men in history have usually left the most interesting and the friendliest letters.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

JAMES J. DAVIS.

James John Davis was born at Tredegar, South Wales, October 27, 1873. He came to the United States with his parents in 1881, and began his career as a puddler's assistant in an iron works at Sharon, Pennsylvania; later in Pittsburgh. He became a puddler at sixteen and worked in the steel and tin plate mills at Elwood, Indiana. Davis was made director-general of the Loyal Order of Moose in 1906 and was instrumental in increasing the membership of the organization from 247 to more than 600,000. He became a secretary of labor by appointment of President Harding March 5, 1921, and continued in office under the Coolidge administration.

Secretary Davis believes that our prosperity can be made stable and permanent. He says:

"The old method of meeting lessened business conditions was either to reduce wages or to lay men off. This, in my opinion, is not the modern scientific method. During the past few years I have studied industry in nearly all the manufacturing sections of our own country and also of Canada, England, and several European countries. From what I have learned, I am absolutely convinced that the old method of lowering wages or laying off men is not the cure for business depression, but increases the depression.

"In every sense, I think the majority of us now regard the lay-off as archaic, and to be avoided, up to the last extremity. Instead of laying off men, we now lay on sales pressure. Instead of laying off producers, we take on the well-trained sales force. We resort to the enormous economic stimulant of advertising—and it is only within comparatively recent times that advertising has come to be recognized for the great economic force that it really is.

"If these simple principles are widely accepted and acted upon, I am sure, as said in the beginning, that a great step will have been taken toward removal of a former cycle of panics and booms. Along with other men engaged on the problem, I firmly believe that prosperity can be made stable and permanent. And I believe the course outlined above is one important way of bringing about that desired end."

Dinner Stories.

There was once an Irish cobbler who had so much work to do that he insisted on taking his shoe repairing work to wakes. It got to be so much talked about that the village people thought they would try to cure him of it. A neighbor pretended to die. The cobbler came to the wake, and sitting beside the coffin, went on with his work.

The "dead" man suddenly sat up in his coffin and said severely:

"Faith! don't ye know that ye are not supposed to cobble at a wake?"

"Faith!" retorted the cobbler, whacking the corpse over the head with his hammer, "don't ye know a corpse is supposed to be dead? Get ye down where ye belong."

Poems That Live.

LITTLE BOY BLUE.

The little toy dog is covered with dust.
But sturdy and stanch he stands;
And the little red soldier is red with rust.
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair;
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So, toddling off to his trundle-bed,
He dreamt of the pretty toys;
And, as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue.
Oh, the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true!

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face;
And they wonder, as waiting the long years through
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue,
Since he kissed them and put them there.

In Paris, the Gay.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

Paris, May 21—Last night with a London newspaperman I dipped into the seamy side of Parisian underworld life with a visit to several haunts of the Apache, the Seine bridges underneath which the scum of Paris comes for the night and several low-drinking dens.

The London scribe was hunting for a missing Liverpool girl, who was one of those who came to Paris to study and like many others suddenly vanished. It proved to be the old story of drink and drugs and her body, bloated blue, had been dredged out of the Seine with a crawfish tangled in her drenched hair.

The human riff-raff that seeps under the Seine bridges is the filthiest perhaps in the world. Old men and women with clawlike hands, matted hair fairly swathed in odd bits of rag, oil cloth and paper drift there to sleep, roast potatoes and mumble to themselves.

The atmosphere is of pestilence and sodden depravity. At sun-up they are off for the lesser boulevards to beg and scavenge the gutters. An agent of the Surete in the district told me so far as he knew they never bathe. Yet they somehow live to advanced and pathetic age.

In the Rue de Lappe near the Bastille once the haunt of the famous and guillotined Apache Latouche—we saw many of his fellow desperadoes. The Apache always wears the raggy cap with the patent leather visor, a colored handkerchief at his throat and a blue flannel shirt.

He is a cowardly assassin of the dark—a slinking footpad who crouches in the shadows to leap upon the wayfarer and strangle him with a rope or knife him with a dirk. He is skilled in jiu-jitsu and an anarchist, hating government and its laws.

Their days are spent in the wine caves and street bars with their women who seem pleased to give them their earnings. The Surete agent introduced us to one who seemed not more than twenty-four, a slim fellow with a harsh nasal voice and shifting eyes. He replied to every question with "Eh, bien." It was easy to see our intrusion annoyed him.

My alertness in emergencies was exemplified today. Walking along one of the fashionable boulevards a beautiful lady in a smart roadster drew up at the curb to inquire a direction. My French is so poor that I said—and why I shall never tell you—"No spik English." The lady had addressed me in French. She sped away with a voluptuous disgust.

My cousin who speaks French fairly well had a similar experience. In a store she inquired a direction. A clerk cried "Ah-h-h!" understandingly and piloting her through several rooms drew up before a counter and with a sweeping bow handed her a pineapple.

The old taxicab drivers of Paris are a contrast to our youthful nerve wreckers in America. They are mostly gray-haired with drooping fierce mustaches and red noses that suggest a chronic taste for wine. They are good natured brigands, who will cheat you out of a few francs, but are careful to protect you from any great danger. If they want to stem a tide of traffic they plunge in and wave off those who approach them with autocratic gesture. Traffic laws are slight. It is every man for himself, yet accidents are few. This morning I had a giant Senegalese. He seemed very popular among the old-timers who shouted vituperation at him along the way.

Then there are those old time cabbies whose skinny nags draw the red-wheeled and metered fiacre. They take their stands in the middle of the street. They wear brass buttoned coats and patent leather plug hats. Americans, flushed with wine, consider a ride with them a great bit of deviltry.

Youth's Choice

REV. C. L. ALLEN
Pastor Calvary Evangelical Church

IN "From Feet to Fathoms," Dr. Robert G. Lee tells of a conversation with a group of 22 boys, all under 14 years of age In this conversation he asked these 22 boys, who of the present living men that they knew of, they would rather be, had they the power to change their life into that of their choice. The following were their answers: Two said they would rather be Jack Dempsey; two would rather be Ty Cobb; four, Charlie Chaplin; two, "Bo" McMillin; one, "Fatty" Arbuckle; two, Henry Ford, one John D. Rockefeller, Jr.; six, Babe Ruth; one, Thomas A. Edison, and one said it "didn't make any difference to him."

Here we have reason to believe that we have a cross-section of the ideals and of the thinking of the average group of American youths. Will you notice what it represents? Of the 22 there were only four whose ideals for life and whose highest ambition was to become honorable and successful men of business or of science, while the other 18 had no higher ambition than to become a star in the athletic world, a prize fighter, or a movie comedian. Not one of the 22 preferred to be an outstanding representative of the Church of Jesus Christ, nor of the many callings which stand directly for the advancement of His cause in the world.

Are we to consider the ideals and purposes of this group of youths as representative of the youth of our land today? If so it presents a dark picture of the future cause of righteousness in the land

But, let us stop a moment and consider! Who is it that is moulding the thinking of our youth, by which their choices and ideals are determined? Is it not we who are adults? Is not the judgment of the youth being fixed by the standard of values set up by the adult world about them? A short time ago, the peerless Sunday School leader and worker of the world, Marion Lawrence, passed away. At just about the same time, the then champion prize-fighter of the world, Jack Dempsey, sprained his ankle. A notice of both these events appeared in many great cosmopolitan newspapers of the land. The notice of the passing of Marion Lawrence, the man whose life has blessed the entire nation, and to whom every ennobling cause is indebted, was told in a very few words, which together with a small print of his likeness, occupied a space about three inches long, while these same newspapers devoted an entire column of the front page and much of the second page, in telling the world about Jack Dempsey's sprained ankle, printing in connection therewith the pugilistic history of the fistic hero

But are the newspapers alone especially to blame for this misplacement of values Our answer would be, that they print what the public wants They but reflect the mind, the thinking, the ideals of the community. What is the dominant note of our American life and thinking today? Is it not the making of a living, rather than the making of a life? What is the dominant note of the conversation of our homes, offices, stores, factories, etc., today? Is it not about material things and material successes? What are the things the youth of our homes hear talked about as they gather round the family board or fireside with the parents of the home? Are the things that they hear such that we could expect the choices of their lives to be different than those of the 22 lads mentioned above?

Here, to our minds, is the greatest challenge presented to the manhood and womanhood of America today. It is the challenge to direct aright the thinking and the living of our youth. Their thinking and their living will be according to the pattern we set before them The choices of the 22 youths above, are but the choices of the adult minds which have influenced their lives. Our youth are but clay in our hands; we are the potter; we can make them WHAT WE WILL.

Surely we can afford to teach them by precept and by example nothing less than, "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." May God help us to set before the youth of Marion true ideals of christian living and character!

Text—In none other is there salvation: for neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved.—Acts 4:12.

1 Now Peter and John were going up into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.

2 And a certain man that was lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the door of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple,

3 Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked to receive an alms.

4 And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him, with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something from them.

6 But Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but what I have, that give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk

7 And he took him by the right hand and raised him up: and immediately his feet and his ankle-bones received strength.

8 And leaping up, he stood, and began to walk; and he entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God:

10 And they took knowledge of him, that it was he that sat for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders,

9 If we this day are examined concerning a good deed done to an impotent man, by what means this man is made whole:

10 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even in him doth this man stand here before you whole.

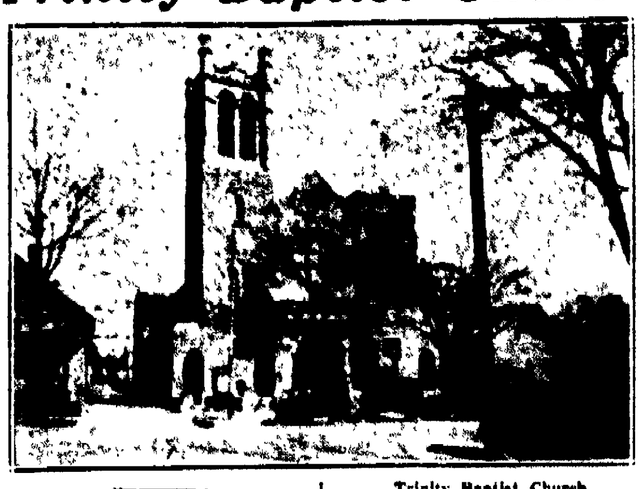
Two Congregations Formed Trinity Baptist Church



Trinity Baptist Church

Work Started Here in Brick School House on N. Prospect-st

One hundred years ago the Baptist work in Marion was started by the organization of the Free Baptist Church. It was organized in a brick school house, on N. Prospect-st, in 1824 and was the oldest church in Marion. In 1841 as the result of a revival held in the barn of Jacob Ulsh, the membership was increased to 90

About this time the first building was erected The land and all the timber was donated by Jacob Ulsh This building was erected on the road now called Mt Vernon av, near Summit-st. When this building was later moved into town it was placed on a lot owned by Eber Baker, founder of the town, and donated at that time to the church. This church stood on the east side of Vine st.

In 1867 the brick church on E Center st was dedicated The congregation worshiped here until 1908 This building is now used by the Yellow Taxi Cab Co.

Cornerstone Laid in 1908

Th cornerstone of the present building on S. Main st was laid Aug 17, 1905, and was dedicated July 26, 1908.

About this time the church established a Sunday School on the corner of Davids and Darius sts which later became the Fite Memorial Baptist Church.

A little later a Sunday School was begun in the north end of the city and this work developed into the Emmanuel Baptist Church on N. Main st.

First Church Organized

In 1885 the First Baptist Church was organized. A building on N State-st was occupied where earnest work was done until 1912. For a number of years the matter of of uniting the First Baptist Church and the Free Baptist Church was considered In 1912 the union of these two churches was effected and the present building on S. Main-st erected by the united churches. The name was changed to Trinity Baptist Church. Both of the churches that made up this union have always been Missionary Baptist Churches and with a fine spirit of sacrifice made generous contributions to the missionary cause. One of the pastors resigned and went as a missionary to India.

First Choir

In the personnel of the church are found the names of many of the early families of Marion. The first choir was organized by Philip Phillips who became a nationally known evangelistic singer. Mrs. Georgia Johnstone Bishop was a member of the choir who also became a famous a singer.

The pulpits of both churches were manned by strong preachers and wise leaders who put the impress of their spiritual teaching upon the community.

President's Church

This is the only Baptist Church that enrolls in its membership a president of the United States. Warren G. Harding united with the Free Baptist Church as a young man and at the time of his death was a member of Trinity Baptist Church. For many years he served the church as a member of the board of trustees, and at all times was a liberal supporter of its activities

The church is now planning to build an educational building which is greatly needed to take care of the growing Sunday School.

TRINITY PASTOR TO GIVE STEREOPTICON LECTURE

"A Hundred Years of Baptist History in Ohio" is the subject of the stereopticon lecture to be given by Dr. U. S. Davis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church Sunday night at the church. There are 75 views in all, showing the contribution Baptists have made to the religious life of the state. The group includes pictures of early church buildings and pioneers who laid the foundation of the denomination in Ohio.

At the morning service Dr. Davis will give a report of the state convention of Baptists held at Youngstown this week.

PLAN SPECIAL SERVICE AT OAKLAND EVANGELICAL

In the interests of "Christian Education" a special service is being planned for Sunday night at Oakland Evangelical Church it was announced today. Rev. H. E. Williamson, pastor of the church, will discuss 'Religious Education" in his sermon, especially arranged for high school students of Oakland Heights Community. Mr and Mrs Merle Lashey will be heard in a vocal duet and the Sunday School Orchestra in two selections.

Children's Day services will be observed at Oakland Church Sunday morning, May 29.

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST IS SERMON TOPIC

Rev. George E. Groves To Conclude from Easter to Pentecost Series

"Christ's Second Coming" is the subject of the sermon to be preached by Rev. George F Groves Sunday night at Central Christian Church. His sermon Sunday morning will be on the subject, "Feed My Sheep," the two being the seventh and eighth sermons in a series on the subject, 'From Easter to Pentecost," which he will conclude June 5

Arrangements are being made for a large delegation of local churchmen to attend the annual state convention of the Church of Christ at Tiffin May 23 to 26. The theme of the convention is 'The Disciples and the Kingdom' Sessions will open Monday afternoon with a meeting of the Board of Managers of Ohio Christian Missionary Society and of the Workers' Conference of the Ohio Christian Woman's Missionary Society. A reception will follow, with a 'fellowship supper" at 5:30, Mrs. C. M Rodefer, Bellaire, president of the Christian Missionary Society, presiding

At that time Mrs. P. M Kendall will conduct devotionals and the president's address will be heard

Prominent among the speakers engaged for the remainder of the convention are Dr. J. M. Artman, secretary of the National Religious Education Association, Dr. A. W. Fortune, one-time dean of the College of the Bible, Disciple Seminary at Lexington, Ky., and now pastor of Central Christian Church there, Mrs J. M. Stearns of St. Louis, Mo., missionary education specialist of the United Christian Missionary Society, R A. Doan, manufacturer, Columbus, and Dr. Elliott I Osgood, a medical missionary at Chuchow, China, since 1898.

REV. A. W. SWAN TO GIVE FINAL SERMON JUNE 12

Two Special Topics Chosen for Services Sunday Morning and Night

Rev. Alfred W. Swan, pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church, who expects to leave soon for Greeley, Colo where he has accepted the pastorate of Park Congregational Church, will preach on the subject, "What I Want To Be Remembered For" Sunday morning at Forest Lawn Church. His sermon topic Sunday night is "How I Will Remember You." Although along that line his Sunday sermons will not be a farewell to the congregation of the church. He will preach his final sermons here Sunday, June 12.

Formal acceptance of Reverend Swan's resignation was made at a business meeting of churchmen Wednesday night. At that time H. B. Walker and R. E. Burnett were elected commissioners to attend the meeting of the Marion Presbytery at Bellefontaine, June 13.

PLANS BEING MADE TO PAINT CHURCH BUILDING

Arrangements are being made for repainting St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, according to announcement made today by Rev. Lester J. Houghtaling, pastor. Churchmen have been engaged in improving the grounds in preparation for grading and seeding the lawn. Since the building was moved to its present location no work on the grounds had been done.

MANY PASTORS CHANGE PULPITS IN SHORT TIME

Eight Institutions Have New Ministers; Two Other Transfers Scheduled

An unusually large number of changes have occurred in Marion pulpits during the past year, a survey of local churches shows Eight religious institutions have already experienced a change of pastor while two churches will soon be without ministers.

Marion's two Presbyterian Churches will undergo a change in pastorates when Rev. Raymond W. Smiley, pastor of the first church, leaves June 1 to take up his new duties with the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Steubenville, and when Rev. Alfred W. Swan, pastor of Forest Lawn church, leaves June 15 to take up his work at the Park Congregational Church of Greeley, Colo. Their successors have not been named. Reverend Smiley served a four-year term here, succeeding Dr. I. L. Strock, former pastor. Reverend Swan has been pastor of Forest Lawn Church, his first charge, for five years. He was formerly assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New York City.

New Salem Pastor

Rev. G. A. Kansler of Wabarush, Ind., will come here May 24 to assume his duties as pastor of Salem Evangelical Church. Rev. Albert J. Koch, the former pastor, is now pastor of St.

June Brides Will Wear White Tulle Gown, Veil of Real Lace, Designer Says

Newest Mode for Bride's Head-Dress Is Full, Close-Fitting Cap of Orange Blossoms; Ensemble with Silk Coat Favored for Traveling

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

Love may have a monopoly on the thoughts of the young man all through the capricious days of spring but for the maid who next month is going to promise to love, honor and obey, the hours, aside from receptions, dinners, teas and showers, are a round of appointments with the dressmaker and tours of the hat shops, hooteries and lingerie saloons. And of course, we all wonder what she will wear this year.

"The very spirit of youth is caught in the white tulle wedding gown with its full, frothy skirt made of many layers as light as thistledown," is the description given by Walter Brown, designer and creator of gowns, of this season's model for the bride. The all important veil is of real lace, rose point or tulle edged with silver while the newest mode for the bride's head-dress is the full, close-fitting cap of orange blossoms. For the bridesmaids, dresses may be of delicate pink tulle or other shades of finely plaited ruffles with the uneven hemline of sheer French lace. Taffetas also hold an appeal that is irresistible, according to Mr. Brown.

All Slenderizing

For the going away gown nothing is more satisfactory than the ensemble while the silk coat is the favorite outer garment with those in the know of the fashion world. The majority of these garments take to the straight way and are slenderizing to the last degree. When satin is not chosen, moire looms upon the fashion horizon as a close second.

For the afternoon's gowns of the trousseau, the compose idea, achieved in numerous clever ways, will hold as one of the high lights of the summer season. To the artist in color it is expressed most happily when three tones of a color are skilfully blended, while the graduations of the primary colors and even of the secondary shades offer a pallette which no fashionist can resist. More definite color combinations appeal to others quite as influential in the world of modes and in them are to be found the blending of black and white and even the more decided contrast. Two shades of blue are found most attractive in a 50-50 combination.

Sheer Silks

For the warm days already heralded there is shown a strong preference for the sheer silks and chiffons and these are to be found with ruffles, frills, plaits and tiers, enhanced with geometrical devices. For evening wear, to be stunningly, georgeously startling, the bride might chose a dancing frock of crepe de chine in one of the new flower designs, large, brilliant flowers in color blendings that rival anything that nature can produce, modeled in a simply draped confection, and dropped over a black satin slip with the drapery drawn into a chou at one side.

On the whole, the entire wardrobe for this season should proclaim a combination of colors and frabrics, carrying out one single, simple theme, always having the effect of great restraint and careful planning. This paradoxical ideal ,makes chic a more difficult achievement than in re cent seasons.

All hail the June bride.

BEECH MISSIONARY SOCIETY HOLDS MEET

Beech, May 21—The Woman's Missionary Society of the Salem Evangelical Church held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon at the church.

Mrs. W. G. Key had charge of the devotionals.

Mrs. William Krautter the president of the society had charge of the service. Mrs. Krautter gave a very interesting talk of the district rally of the missionary meeting held at the Greenwood Evangelical Church at Marion last week.

The society took up the study of the book, "Our Temple Hill," in charge of their president.

Have Your CURTAINS Laundered To Measure

Now that winter is over it is time to wash curtains. We wash curtains to measure.

This is how we do it:

First we take their measure. Then we cleanse them in pure soft water and billowy suds until they are white and sweet, and finally we lay them, still damp, upon a remarkable new drying frame. This holds the curtains without any pins or hooks whatever, and dries them smoothly and daintily in exactly their original size.

You'll like this way of laundering curtains. Call us today and have us launder yours.

WEDNESDAY night's rain storm took all the happiness out of life for Patsy who was compelled to stand helplessly by and see five of her six babies drown in the water which backed up into their cumfy bed in the basement of the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. McKim, Kennedy-ct. She worked heroically to tote one of the puppies to the landing at the head of the cellar steps but her second trip to the little box was hopeless, Jiggs, Big Mac, Maxine and two who were yet to be named were too far away for her to reach. This was Patsy's first family and last night the puppies would have been one month old. To say that she was proud of her family is putting it mildly, in spite of the fact that the cares of motherhood, especially of such a large family, rested heavily on her shoulders.

ONE of our large local stores offers a service which to me is appreciated beyond measure and I am sure there are others as artless as myself who feel the same way. I don't waste many minutes arguing with myself where to go if it is a gift I want, for it isn't nearly such a job to shop if one knows the package is going to be done up attractively, ribbon, card 'n everything, and that's just what this store does. All you have to do is inkle it is a gift and the frick is done. Of course it means waiting a little longer but one usually goes gift shopping rather leisurely anyhow, and besides what is a few minutes spent in waiting for a perfectly lovely package compared with an hour spent fighting with scissors, ribbon and tissue paper and in the end have the package look like something the cat dragged in. However, if you are an artist this won't mean so much to you for you no doubt put on some fal de rals that would make the package look like a million dollars, but to folk who can't even tie a double bow knot it's like getting a real, regular dinner when you thought there was only going to be refreshments.

MIND your p's and q's Monday, July 11, is the warning handed out by one Rev. Walter Wynn, who forecasts the world's future in the great Egyptian Pyramid at Giza. Just what will happen he does not say but even the warning makes one shiver and wonder if Walter really has something under his hat he isn't going to let us in on. He sniffs casually at some little altercation between our own fair country and the land on which the sun never sets, through China. He also hints that May 29 may not be so peaceful but this also has to deal with world affairs so if you have had visions of a nifty sport outfit for the summer go ahead and get it and there is every assurance there will be no rift in the domestic lute.

CIRCLE ENTERTAINED

Mrs. George Hagemann Hostess to Wayside Group

Mrs. George Hagemann entertained members of Wayside Loyal Circle, Wayside Rose Rebekah Lodge, yesterday afternoon at her home, 255 Gurley-av. CONFER DEGREES

Marion Lodge, F. and A. M. Holds Meet At Temple

The entered apprentice and fellow craft degrees were conferred on a class of candidates at the regular weekly meeting of Marion Lodge, No. 70, F. and A. M., held at the Masonic Temple, last night.

The next meeting of the lodge will be at the annual sunrise memorial service to be convened at 4 o'clock the morning of May 30. The usual weekly session next Friday night will not be held.

INSURANCE UNION PLANS MAY DAY CEREMONIAL

The annual May Day ceremonial meeting of Marion Chapter, No. 684, American Insurance Union, will be held next Wednesday night at the Odd Fellows' hall on N. Main-st. Initiation of a class of candidates will be the principal feature of the program.

The weekly meeting of the chapter, scheduled for last night, was postponed because of the school cantata being held at Garfield park.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS PLAN MEMORIAL RITES

Arrangements for the annual memorial services of Marion Lodge, No. 402, Knights of Pythias, to be held in June, were made at the regular weekly meeting of the lodge held last night. William R. Martin and Louis Uhl were appointed as the committee which will complete plans and outline the program. The date will be announced at the lodge meeting next week.

PLAN SUPPER

Plans were made for a cafeteria supper June 9, at the church, at the meeting of members of the Woman's Service Society, First Presbyterian Church, Thursday afternoon in the church parlors. The remainder of the afternoon was spent with routine business and socially.

Unusually Clever Party Is Held By Press Club

One of the cleverest parties of the school year was the "circus" given by members of the Press Club, a group of journalism students, last night in the gymnasium at Harding High School. The gym was decorated with variegated balloons and streamers in keeping with the spirit of the occasion and each guest received an animal cracker tied with baby ribbon as a favor.

Guests of the club included the faculty and a number of school students, individually invited by members of the club.

Oscar Hittenrauch, editor of the Quiver and president of the club presided and gave the address of welcome. K. H. Marshall, principal of the school, was heard in a short address in which he emphasized the importance of newspaper work as influential to the public mind, and mentioned several essentials to good reporting, an ability to obtain facts, correctly and on time, and persistency.

Edward Sloan entertained with two vocal solos, with Miss Elma Sage playing his accompaniment at the piano. Miss Sage and Miss Dorothy Ziez were heard in a piano duet.

An informal program followed and included an original poem, "A Humorous Regime of the Quiver Work for the year 1926-27," written and read by Miss Jane Guthery. A newspaper contest was enjoyed, during which time the guests were asked to enact in pantomime the scene of the newspaper clipping which they were presented. Miss Virginia Smith and a committee were in charge of refreshments and were assisted by Miss Priscilla Smith and students of the domestic science department. Miss Jane Guthery was in charge of the program.

INDOOR PICNIC

General Aid Society, Epworth, Enjoys Event at Church

Approximately 500 members and guests of the General Aid Society, Epworth M. E. Church, enjoyed an indoor picnic at the church yesterday noon. Following group meetings of the 11 aid circles, a general business meeting was held and devotional exercises conducted. Mrs. Robert Cheney, Mrs. F. E. Dowell and Mrs. Laura Dombaugh were appointed on a nominating committee for next year by Miss Mary Rexroth, president. The next regular meeting of the aid society will be held June 10 at the church.

KONJOLA ENDED HER SUFFERING OF TEN YEARS

Lima, Ohio Lady Is Now Free of Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

"I can certainly indorse Konjola in the highest terms, because it ended the suffering I had for 10 years and I am free of all my health troubles," said Mrs.

MRS. EDITH HAMILTON

Edith Hamilton, well-known Lima, Ohio lady, living at 731 South Pine St., that city in a recent statement about Konjola, this new advanced medicine which the Konjola Man is explaining to large crowds daily at the Stump Pharmacy, (Stump and Sams), 121 South Main St., Marion.

"I had been doctoring a long time for my health troubles," said Mrs. Hamilton, "And tried almost everything in the drug stores of Lima and Chicago, where I formerly lived, but nothing did me any good. Recently I got Konjola and it turned out to be exactly what I had always been needing.

"Owing to weakness of the kidneys, I was subject to frequent night rising and pains across my back. I was always sore and achy in the mornings. I suffered with terrific headaches and dizzy spells. I was told this was due to liver trouble. My complexion was very unhealthy looking. I also had indigestion after nearly every meal, and my food would sour, causing an acidy, gassy condition in my stomach.

"I began taking Konjola, and it made a change in me right away. I have taken six bottles in all, and I am like a different person entirely. My stomach never gives me any trouble, and my food always agrees with me. I am not subject to night rising, because my kidneys are strengthened, and the pains do not come in my back like they used to. I never have headaches or dizzy spells. My complexion is clear and healthy.

"Yes, a wonderful change has come over me in general, since I got Konjola, and I know I can recommend this medicine."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy, (Stump & Sams), 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free sample given.—Adv.

ang a smile, replied: I to read that which lies of Allah?"

e Chadma apparently was form of answer, not being with wizards. As a matter seemed that he had been and Larry knew that he a piece of gold and Larry asked:

of the future, after all, answered the other. "I instead, if a foreigner was night, or if he still lives to way?"

ring this Larry's heart lightened for he could answer the man in a manner that should prove most convincing. Looking the Chadma squarely in the eyes he droned a prayer in a dull monotone, then suddenly pointed to the blank wall of a near-by stall. The Chadma, sweat starting on his forehead, looked, and as he gazed, he saw a film of darkness spread across the wall; saw a white man running down an alleyway pursued by a crowd of burnouse-clad men; saw them catch him and saw long knives flash in the glare of a fitful, mist-swept moon. Furthermore, he saw the man fall and the long knives plunged into him again and again. Then, he saw the body dragged to a nearby canal, whose banks were filled to brimming with muddy water. He visioned stones being thrust in the clothes of the dead man, then watched the whole ensemble hurled into the canal.

Quickly, the mists cleared from the wall. Larry's fingers snapped in front of the Chiadma's eyes and Larry's voice, speaking gutural Chleuh, was saying:

"And even so the nasrani arrived and was set upon. His body now lies at the bottom of the canal. Are you satisfied, Chiadma?"

Awe was in the other's face, his tongue seemingly clove to his mouth. He had seen many wizards; mayhap, had gazed upon scores of their marvellous performances, in all likelihood, but never, it seemed, had he met a magician with the powers of this one. He answered humbly.

"You have answered, O Father of Wisdom, Son of Mysteries, the gold belongs to you, and right willingly do I renounce it. Now, I return whence I came."

"You return to the hills, carrying a message of the death to those who sent you," Larry said gravely, chancing a shot in the dark. "I, too, go into the hills. Let us travel together for such time as may be."

"Now, by Allah's beard, who am I that I should be thus honored?" the other asked, a little fearfully, it seemed. "Who is Abdesselam el Hadj that a great magician should condescend to travel in his company? I am honored greatly."

"You will be starting at once Abdesselam?" Larry questioned.

"Ai, and that I may say to those who ask me, and pass down to a thousand descendants word of the honor that is done me, when an Ait Youssef el-Habbassi, the Wizard did take you for company," Larry answered solemnly.

The other's breath came in a little whistling gasp. Then:

"Yea I have heard of your coming. Woe is me that I have not a stallion of Barbary on which to mount you. Alas, woe is me."

"Say not so," Larry said, his voice gentle now. "It is well that I travel afoot, for who knows where the war may lead? Lead Abdesselam, I come at your side."

Silently the Chadma cut off from the market place where crowds were beginning to gather for a hurried morning's business in order that they might return to the shelter of their homes, out of the heat of the day. Down a winding maze of narrow alleyways the fellow led, then a high wall loomed. A Partisan policeman, long-barrelled rifle at attention, stood at the gate. His rifle dropped to a level as they approached and his voice rang in sharp inquiry. To Larry's surprise the Chadma answered in French.

"For France."

The title went for the tribesman, followed by Grenfall, walked through the gate and down the yellow road that led toward the vastness of the mighty Atlas.

From the southern gate of Ab Dukkar the yellow road winds like a giant snake up into the foothills of the great Atlas mountains and six miles from the little walled city loses itself in the vastness of the illimitable range. Along this road Youssef el Habbassi and Abdesselam el Hadj made their slow way. It was ten o'clock when they topped the last ridge that was visible from Ab Dukkar and looked back upon the nondescript settlement of the foothills. For two more hours they went on, each succeeding mile burying them deeper in a country primeval. After a time Abdesselam said:

"It is time that we eat, taleb," and together they turned from the road and found shelter beneath a giant argan tree. Here, Youssef further astounded his companion by drawing forth a packet of food and a bottle containing cold coffee, saying:

"I have sufficient for two cups of coffee, Abdesselam, then, it runs in my thoughts, I will not again find opportunity to taste the weed until more fortuitous circumstances are with me."

Silently they began their meager repast.

"How far do you go?" Abdesselam asked, apparently having grown weary of the silence.

"Allah alone knows," Youssef answered. "I have much to do and much to say; it will take time, I fear."

"You will be in Duk-el-abda?"

"Such are my plans."

"I fear you may never live to reach there!"

Something in Abdesselam's voice caused Larry to gaze at him keenly. The man continued to eat calmly. Larry queried sharply:

"What do you mean by that?"

The other answered?

"Have you a dispensation that permits that you forget the dohr?"

Larry was chagrined. It was, as nearly as could be judged, about 1:30 in the afternoon, which is a time throughout all Islam for a short prayer—the second of the day's program of five. He knelt beside Abdesselam calmly, but was resolved that when the next prayer period came—between 3 and 4 o'clock—he would not be forgetful again.

He found himself wondering over his companion. Surely, the fellow suspected him.

He glanced keenly at the fellow, seeing that he was busy at his prayers. Something about him suddenly seemed familiar; some intangible manner he had, or some subtle appearance that had all at once made itself visible. After a time a suspicion flared in his mind and gradually grew to a certainty, although, he told himself, it might be absurd.

The prayer ended and Abdesselam rose, Larry with him. Silently they looked at one another, then Larry decided to risk a chance shot, to verify his suspicions or knock them galleywest.

"Abdesselam el Hafy," he said slowly, "I think you should do something about that tiny scar on your neck else see that your burnouse never slips. I saw the scar just now as you prayed, and only recently the same scar showed while you held converse with a nasrani in a certain house in Ab Dukkar."

At this the other's eyes twinkled and he burst into a merry peal of laughter, at the same time casting a quick glance around them. He noted that they were alone in the space beside the road.

"Verily, you are an observant fellow, Grenfall," he chuckled. "I had not thought to test you, nor had it been in my mind to reveal myself. I had only thought to accompany you briefly in order that I might catch you in and caution you against simple and apparently minor errors, for I know that once warned, you will not again forget."

"I confess I was forgetful, Omar ben Medjad," Larry answered, "and I am thankful it was you and not the real Abdesselam el-Hadj who caught me in my remissness of my Moslem teaching."

Omar laughed again, showing white even teeth.

"Come, we must go on," he said. "I think you will not again forget, for unless I am mistaken you have already impressed upon yourself the fact that soon the fedjr will come, that at dusk we have still another prayer, and, a short time later, still another."

"I have impressed myself with those very things," Larry answered grimly. "Also, my friend I have been thinking that you are somewhat of a wizard yourself."

"Perhaps, were I to try, I could pass successfully, but my work lies elsewhere. By the way, I want to congratulate you on the entertainment you gave me in the market place. Your powers of hypnotism are marvellous, man, and quite above the general run to be found in Moslem. The fact that you subjugated such an old hand at the game as myself ought to prove that you have, indeed, greater than ordinary ability in that line."

"But you weren't easy," Larry admitted. "For a time I thought you were going to be too much for me, but when you looked sharply at the wall I knew I had you. After that, of course, it was only necessary for me to think what you were to see, and to say softly my thoughts. Thus, I reproduced in your imagination the scene that I intended to impress on you as a photograph of something that had actually occurred."

"When you succeeded in hypnotizing me, my friend," said Omar, "was in that instant when, realizing your really wonderful powers, and wishing to see what you could do, I consented in my own mind for yours to master mine. As a hypnotist of sorts myself, I know of course, that the mind which resists cannot be subjugated by another's."

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELL GARRISON

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE LETTER?

AS I saw that the sealed letter which the red bearded man had said was a message had disappeared from the top of the bookcase, I felt my pulses quicken with the consciousness that there was some sort of a mystery concerning the bizarre communication and the man who brought it and that Miss Lincoln's desire to see the secret hollow in the gatepost had not been prompted by the idle curiosity which I almost had come to believe had actuated her.

Almost—but not quite. I realized that from the first I subconsciously had sensed the terrified comprehension of the "message" which had been so spectacularly brought to her and that when she sped back to the house upon her pretended errand, I had known that it was to retrieve the letter from its exposed position and to hide it securely—perhaps even upon her person—although she disdainfully had retreated when the red bearded man had extended the soiled envelope in his grimy hand, and arrogantly had commanded him to lay it on the sundial and go.

Quickly I averted my eyes from the bookcase but not swiftly enough to escape Dicky's keen eyes. I saw him frown, and at Mary's guilty blink of the eyelids I knew that she also had shot a glance at the spot where the letter had rested.

Fortunately, however, Miss Lincoln, busy with the tea tray, had not noticed our glances, and for the next ten minutes our call followed the perfunctory course of similar visits all over the world. Nothing more was said about any further exploration of the grounds, and I, for one, was well content to stay upon the sheltered, homey verandah. I had had quite enough excitement for one day.

When we rose to leave Miss Lincoln put out her hands impulsively to me.

"You will come again, soon, won't you?" she asked. "It is very lonely here, very strange."

She was like a lovely wistful child in her appeal, and there vanished swiftly from my mind the slight but very distinct prejudice I had found myself indulging against her.

"Of course we will," I said cordially, pressing her hands warmly, "and you must come to see us often. I hope your aunt and uncle also will be able to come."

She shook her head regretfully.

"I cannot promise that," she said. "Poor Tante rarely even gets outdoors. I am sure she never would be able to make the journey to your house. She is very frail. And my uncle is rather difficult. No, I think I shall come by myself."

"You will be most welcome," I assured her and she thanked me prettily and a cordial good-by to Mary and to Dicky, and then, with a palpable air of having reserved the best till the last, she extended a hand to Noel.

"Mrs. Tyler tells me," she said, "that I am to be the cause of depriving you of luncheon, as she cannot get back to her house in time to prepare it. Will you not let me make amends by doing me the honor to be our guest at luncheon each day?"

Poor Noel flushed a brick red at this sudden onslaught and I saw that Mrs. Tyler had not yet spoken to him about the change which would be made in his daily regime. So far, she evidently had gone home in the middle of the day and prepared luncheon for him. From Mary, standing next to me, there came a quick catch of the breath, unheard, I was sure by the others, and I hastened to the rescue of the situation.

"You are so kind," I told our young hostess, "but Mr. Veritsen is already provided for. You see he is so old a friend of ours and Mrs. Tyler is so valued a neighbor that we have arranged the matter between us. Mr. Veritsen is to lunch with us as a regular thing, but"—as I saw her expressive face shadow with something very like disappointed chagrin—"I am sure that very often this Summer we will exchange luncheon guests. You must come to us and our young people will come to you."

COCO, CIRCUS CLOWN, IS DECORATED BY FRANCE

Paris, May 21—Raoul Jouin, otherwise known as "Coco," a circus clown, has been decorated by the French Government. His official title is now, "Officer of the Academy."

The son of a master of circus stables, "Coco" made his debut in Paris at the age of nine.

He is not the first clown to be honored by the French government. The Fratellini Brothers were decorated several years ago with the Academic Palms.

In America newspaper fame is a substitute for what a membership in the peerage is in England.

Recipes for New and Novel Dishes; Household Ideas and Suggestions

The following menu for a day was planned for people who are fighting rather high blood pressure. Little meat, a sparing use of salt and other seasoning and careful attention to the diet keeps the blood pressure down to normal.

BREAKFAST

Oranges Rolled Oats
Old Fashioned Brown Sugar Cream
Bran Muffins Butter
Maple Syrup
Coffee Substitute

LUNCHEON

Cottage Cheese Salad
Baked Carrots Hard Rolls
Butter Pineapple Jam
Stewed Prunes Milk

DINNER

Swiss Steak Served on Toast
Gravy Baked Potatoes
Butter Coleslaw
Spinach Seasoned With Butter
Home Canned Peaches
Coffee Substitute

TODAY'S RECIPES

Baked Carrots—Prepare as many carrots as needed. Cut lengthwise, if large. Season with a small amount of sugar, salt and pepper to taste, add a generous lump of butter. Bake until tender, with just enough water to keep from scorching.

Swiss Steak—Pound flour into rather thick pieces of steak cut for serving. Season with salt and pepper, brown lightly on both sides in butter. Add just enough hot water to keep from burning. Bake one hour. A little onion improves the flavor.

Coleslaw—Shave cabbage fine. Add a small piece of green pepper and one small carrot grated. Mix lightly with as much mayonnaise as desired, made as follows: Beat one egg, add two tablespoons oil. Beat again. Add two more spoons oil and beat well. Add two teaspoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon red pepper. Beat again. Now add one cup oil, one-quarter at a time and keep beating until you have added the full cup. Now add two tablespoons vinegar and beat again. Add one-quarter cup oil and one tablespoon lemon juice. Beat well. Keep in a cool place.

HAIL LINDBERGH AS GREATEST OF DARE-DEVILS

Never Has Flight So Gripped Popular Imagination as This One

Washington, May 21—"The greatest dare-devil of them all." This was the tribute paid to Capt. Charles Lindbergh by navy experts today in commenting on the fact that the loue transoceanic flier had only a compass to guide him on his perilous flight from Newfoundland to the coast of Ireland.

"He will make new history in aerial navigation if he reaches his goal," said Lieut. Logan C. Ramsey, navy expert, who has charted many ocean flight courses.

"Lucky" Lindbergh carried no navigator as do the big ships that traverse the North Atlantic. He carried no expensive instruments such as Commander Byrd proposes to take on his transatlantic hop. Even Capt. Nungesser, the French ace, carried a navigator in Capt. Coli.

If Lindberg hangs to his pre-charted course and his motor holds out he will reach Paris; if he veers off in the trackless Atlantic he may land in icy waters hundreds of miles from the ship lanes.

Ocean All

A navigator, experts explained, must figure the variation of the compass caused by the influence of the magnetic pole. He must figure "drift"—the effect of wind upon the swift moving airplane. This is done by use of smoke bombs. He cannot resort to astronomical reckonings nor will he have permanent marks to steer by.

"If he gets off his course he will have no way of telling where he is," explained one navy expert. "The ocean is all alike out there. To get back on his course he would have to take astronomical observations and he can't do that. If he has gas enough, though, he may strike the continent somewhere."

Charles A. Levine, head of the Columbia Aircraft Corporation, owners of the Bellanca machine, said that another aviator had been selected to take the place of Lloyd Bertaud as navigator and that this flier would accompany Pilot Clarence Chamberlain when the flight is undertaken.

Never Such a Flight

In all the history of aviation there has never been a flight that has so gripped the popular imagination as the one-man air voyage of Lindbergh.

With the tragic fate of Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Francois Coli still fresh in the public mind and in the face of daily reports of storms and fog banks over the north Atlantic, Lindbergh courageously decided to brave all these perils. All nations have united in a universal prayer for his safety and for his success. Cable advices from Paris stated that the people of Paris are prepared to give the young American a tremendous ovation. His greeting, it was said, would be a counterpart of the welcome that awaited Nungesser and Coli in New York had they succeeded in making their sensational flight successfully.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT PULPIT CHANGES

STARTS ON PAGE 7

Mark's Evangelical Church, Chicago. He left here last December after completing a five year term. Rev. H. E. Williamson took up the pastorate of Oakland Evangelical Church in September, when Rev. C. W. Ruhlman resigned in that capacity.

Rev. S. S. Hardy of Goodrich, Ont., took up his duties as rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church May 1, filling the vacancy made last fall when Rev. I. Frederic Jones left for Cleveland to become rector of St. Phillip's Episcopal Church there.

Filling the vacancy made by Rev. Paul R. Clouser, now pastor of the Lutheran Church at Carey, Rev. Lester J. Houghtaling came here as a graduate of Hamma Divinity College, Springfield, May 8.

In August, Rev. W. R. Shively was called here from Plymouth, Ind., to assume charge of the First Church of the Brethren, of which Rev. Ralph R. Hatton, of the Brethren Church of Toledo, was former pastor.

Rev. John T. Hannahan assumed his duties as assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in October, coming here from London, where he was assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church. Rev. Thomas Kearns, former assistant here, is now pastor of the Catholic Church in Lebanon.

Baptist Change

Rev. Wiley S. Young, the new pastor of Fite Memorial Baptist Church, came here May 8 from Pensacola, Fla. Rev. A. G. Adriance, resigned the week previous.

In the fall of last year Rev. W. H. Howard came here from Lima, where he was pastor of the United Brethren Church, and took the pastorate of the local church. He succeeded Rev. O. E. Knepp, now pastor of the United Brethren Church in Defiance and for four year's pastor here.

Rev. L. W. White has been pastor of the African Methodist Church since Reverend Lowe resigned in September. Reverend White came here from Delaware where he was pastor of an African Methodist Church and Reverend Lowe was transferred to the Marietta territory.

A change in the leadership of the local Salvation Army Post was made in September of last year when Capt. William Killoch came here from the Salvation Army Headquarters in Columbus and Adjutant Lee Gaugh left for the Lima post.

Capital Citizens in Arms, Fight to Save City's Trees

Commission Finally Heeds Plea and Halts Chopping Axmen

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 21—Washington's inhabitants rose up in their wrath the other day and threw such a scare into the District of Columbia commissioners that they called a halt on the program to hack down the equivalent of a fair forestful of the beautiful trees which for years have been the capital's chiefest ornament.

The vandalistic work was not stopped, to be sure, until most of the city's business section had been barbously mangled, but at least a reprieve has been granted to most of the residence district.

There is a good deal to be hoped from this.

The District of Columbia commission ordinarily is about as responsive to Washington public opinion as Ivan the Terrible is reputed to have been to the appeal of the meanest moujik.

Somebody the commissioners really were afraid of must have come along and told 'em there'd be a revolution if they went ahead with their massacre. And the commissioners must have believed him. Otherwise they never would have suspended operations with their axmen actually engaged in the horrible slaughter.

WASHINGTON, it should be remembered, probably was the only hoggish town in the country which, until quite recently, looked as if the good Lord had created it with some eye to beauty, rather than for purposes of cold boiled utility, solely and exclusively.

It was a place to rest your gaze on; not alone to pile up shekels in.

Oh, yes, it had some bum statuary, but, as American cities went, it was pretty so-so.

Among other things, its foliage was lovely. Even a lot of the business thoroughfares were tree-lined. The trees interfered with the parking of drivers maybe, but who cared? To hades with automobiles, anyway!

DURING the war, or right after it, along came a bunch of realtors and undertook to change all this—and darn if they haven't gone a long way toward accomplishing it.

Having invested in a lot of city property that they wanted to quadruple their money on, their whole idea was to make the place HUGE.

They not only didn't object to, they longed for, congestion—to boost rates of front footage.

The trees, in particular, simply sickened 'em. Look at all that room garage wagons might be occupying!

JUST to give some notion of the atrocities these folks didn't stick at:

Sixteenth-st (the Avenue of the Presidents) is one of Washington's show thoroughfares. It's an archway of as fine old trees as can be found in the country. It was complained that they were in the way of double-deck buses. Their amputation, root and branch, was demanded.

There fas a holler. Some mighty influential people live on Sixteenth-st. The protest they raised was pretty formidable.

The "improvement" element saw it couldn't get away with complete deforestation, so, as a compromise, it proposed to clean out only half of each tree.

That is, the limbs on the sidewalk side were to be left; the ones on the street side were to be amputated close up to the curb, as a giant jack plane would do it—a row of one-half trees on either side of the street that the White House looks out on!

The plan wasn't adopted. The president or somebody balked at it.

But it was only by the mercy of providence that it miscarried.

It also just goes to show that Washington's up against in the hands of an outfit whose dream of an attractive capital is a desert waste with downtown lots selling at Broadway prices.

Ohio Lutheran Synod Body Fails to Bring Peace To Warring Galion Churches

Another Chapter in Controversy Written When Special Committee Seeks To Settle Bitter Fight Between Congregations

Galion, May 21—Another chapter in Galion's church controversy story was written during the last week when a committee appointed by the Northern District of the Lutheran Synod of Ohio, was in the city to attempt again a reconciliation between Peace Lutheran and Trinity Lutheran congregations.

For several years this inter-church struggle has held the attention of synod members and efforts have been made repeatedly to restore friendly relations. At the beginning the disagreement was centered in the first named church, formerly known as the German Lutheran, and trouble arose because of anti-lodge feeling expressed by the minister, Rev. John Allwardt. Ware's visit soon caused much trouble among church members and the pastor was asked by the church vestry to resign.

It was then that the present Trinity Lutheran congregation had its beginning as Reverend Awardt and a small body of followers established a church at Brownell's Hall, a part of the Bishop Brown estate and have since held regular services. The original church was renamed Peace Lutheran and Rev. Philip Auer chosen as pastor.

Body Becomes Involved

The governing body of Lutheranism soon became involved and proceeded to try various methods of bringing the two groups of Galion church people together again but every attempt was unsuccessful.

The committee appointed for the continuance of the investigation work includes Rev. F. G. Richter, Detroit; Rev. R. A. Bora, Napoleon, Rev. W. F. Krause, Detroit, Rev. Albert Bauman, Bowling and Rev. E. W. Benseh, Monroeville. The meetings during the last week were held at the Central Hotel and committees from both churches permitted interviews of considerable length. After four days of discussion and argument the committee left with little accomplished in the way of achieving peace. Old grievances were re told and the committee at last, unable to reach a definite decision, adjourned until September when a report will be prepared for presentation at the synod convention.

30 STUDENTS IN CARDINGTON SENIOR CLASS

Galen Starr Ross Delivers Address at Commencement Exercises

Cardington, May 21—A class of 30 was given diplomas at the annual commencement of the Cardington High School Thursday night at the school auditorium.

Galen Starr Ross, Detroit, noted platform humorist, gave the class address. Seated on the stage with the 30 graduates and the speaker were Rev. O. L. Williams, pastor, M. E. Church, and M. M. Shaffer, president, school board. The program opened with music by the Cardington High School orchestra, followed by invocation by Rev. O. L. Williams. After another number by the orchestra the speaker was fittingly introduced by Supt. C. M. Beitler and responded with a stirring address on "Practical Ideals of American Education."

START EXCAVATION WORK AT LEESVILLE SCHOOL

Sugree and Easley, Bellefontaine, Awarded Contract for $43,000

Bucyrus, May 20—Work of excavation for large additions to the Jefferson Township Consolidated School building at Leesville is under way. Sugree and Easley of Bellefontaine were awarded the contract for general construction work and it is under their direction that work has been started.

According to plans the remodeled and enlarged school building is to be ready for the students at the opening of the school year this fall. The bid of Sugree and Easley was 43,000. The bond issue voted at the election one year ago authorized the issuing of bonds to the extent of $75,000 to finance the work. The entire building is to be remodeled and modernized. A large addition is to be built at the west side of the building.

Other contractors who will do specific parts of the work are: Robert Knoll, Pickaway, plumbing and heating, and Reed and Raber, Ada, electric wiring.

When the Leesville building is completed Crawford County will have 10 modern consolidated high schools and one grade school. The latter is at Monnett. The 10 schools of the county in order of their construction are Lykens, Mt. Zion, New Washington, Chatfield, North Robinson, Monnett, Crestline, Tiro, Sulphur Springs, Holmes-Liberty and Wheatstone.

Mt. Gilead Teachers Are Honored By Students Body

MT GILEAD, May 21 Seniors and under classmen gathered at the High school yesterday afternoon for the last time, to receive their report cards for the year.

Ramel Logan president of the senior class in behalf of the entire school, presented a chest of beautiful and luxurious silver to Mr and Mrs John Howard Gongwer, who have resigned their positions and are moving to Mansfield, where he will open a law office. Mr. Gongwer has been principal of the High school for two years and Mrs Gongwer, for the past three years has been teacher of English and public speaking. Mr Gongwer responded and expressed their appreciation and gratitude for the beautiful gift and especially for its significance.

Gerald Zolman, president of the athletic association presented a beautiful gold basketball to Coach Walter C Matheny, who has also resigned to take up other lines of work. The ball is engraved with an "M" and "Coach." Coach Matheny responded briefly to the presentation.

Ramel Logan, in behalf of the senior class presented the class gift to the school. The class gave twelve volumes of good fiction to the school as its memorial.

Captains Chosen

Bob White, popular athlete, was chosen basketball captain for the coming year, by this years letter men. White won four letters this year in football, basketball, baseball and debating.

Louise Loran forward on the purple team, who was chosen on the all county team, was elected captain of the girls' team. She was the unanimous choice of her teammates.

Richard Logan was chosen baseball captain for next year. He was the southpaw pitching ace on this years team. Baseball is developing in the local school and next years team should be good. Logan is a good hitter when not pitching and a good hitter.

The newly elected captains were presented to the school and generously aplauded.

Members of the baseball team were awarded the official two color five inch white and purple full block "M" by Coach Matheny. The following players received letters: Captain Bennett, Logan, Rathburn, Liggett, Zolman, C. Crayne, W Crayne, Rule, Stevens, White and Manager Shade.

Six girls, representing the school in volley ball, were awarded the official white full block four inch "M" by Coach Matheny, as follows: Nichols, Lemley, Spriggs, Meckley, Richardson and Smith.

The seniors were instructed to meet at the Presbyterian church Sunday night at 7 o'clock for the baccalaureate sermon.

School was adjourned for the base ball game.

MEMORIAL SERVICES PLANNED AT KENTON

Patriotic Organizations To Attend Sermon at St. John's Church

Kenton, May 21—Annual joint memorial services of Kenton's patriotic organizations and their auxiliares, will be held Sunday, May 29, in St. John's Evangelical church with the pastor Rev. E. G. Kuenzler, delivering the address.

Plans for the service held each year preceding Memorial Day observances, were tentatively completed at a conference of representatives from the Cantwell Post, G. A. R., Frank D. Bain Camp, United Spanish War Veterans and the American Legion.

Tentative arrangements for Memorial Day services here Monday, May 30 were also completed at the conference.

James W. Huffman, Columbus attorney and member of the public utilities commission, will deliver the main address at a mammoth community gathering in the armory during the morning. The program of patriotic music at this meeting will be in charge of Miss Frances Harbison.

TO MAINTAIN HARDIN COUNTY CLEANUP FORCE

To Carry Out Work in Fields Unaffected by Modifications

Kenton, May 21—While Hardin County has been included in the list of communities exempted by the federal department of agriculture from the corn borer control regulations applying to fields of wheat, oats, barley, rye and other small grains, the present corn borer clean-up force will be maintained for the present at least, Ira C. Marshall, Ada, county supervisor stated today.

The modification order does not affect fields planted after the present date, principally those to be put in corn, soy beans and potatoes, said Mr. Marshall, and it will be necessary to see that state and federal requirements are enforced in these instances.

Formal notification of the modification [illegible]

Kenton Schools Holding Second Annual Display of Work Turned Out by Pupils

Thousands of Articles, Handiwork of Students from First Grade Through High School Make Up Huge Exhibit

Kenton, May 21—A comprehensive idea of the varied scope of work accomplished in the public schools here is given in the second annual school display and exposition now under way in the Hardin County armory.

Thousands of articles, the handiwork of pupils from the first grade and on up through the high school, are shown and at the close of the first day had been inspected by more than 4,000 persons.

Through plans completed by D. B. Clark, superintendent of schools, who inaugurated the exposition idea a year ago, each of the 1,700 local students is represented in the vast collection by one piece or another of his or her work during the year.

Time to predictions at the close of the 1926 show the exhibit this year is again as large and the entries are almost doubled. The displays are grouped and attractively arranged according to class, school and the departments comprising the elaborate school system.

There is an almost unbelievable wide range of work—from the simple writing of the first graders to the finished products of the Seniors and the varied assortment of subject matter embraces a model of Caesar's bridge and the good ship, "Santa Maria," Columbus' flagship done in miniature, and a replica of the City of Mexico carved entirely from ivory soap.

There are examples upon examples of scholastic work, featuring principally art work including paintings, crayon drawings, pen sketches carved wall plaques, tooled purses, advertisements, hand printing completed laboratories with the students' equipment of test tubes, burners weights and what not, toys, basket weaving and other miniature articles completed by the underdeveloped pupils of the special opportunity room and even pastry.

Probably the largest and most elaborate of the departmental displays is that of the manual training students, including lamp stands and end and davenport tables, radio cabinets, bookcases, pedestals, chests, cedar chests, all of finished and artistic designs.

Another section of the home economics department includes dresses, draperies, and many other articles evidencing the artistic handiwork of the embryo housewife.

Live baby chicks, cattle, hogs and colts and placards and displays emphasizing the importance of raising pure bred stocks feature the Vocational Agriculture department's display.

Even students' organizations, the band and music departments and physical training work have places of prominence.

JUDGMENT FOR $82.50 IS AWARDED PLAINTIFF

Trial Resulting from Auto Collision Lasts Three Days

Marysville, May 21—Judgment for $82.50 was returned by a jury in the local Common Pleas court yesterday in the case of Bessie F. Oyler, against Owen Sherwood, of Washington Township, in suit for damages in an automobile accident. Mrs. Oyler originally asked for damages in the amount of $1,385.00, which she claimed for injuries.

She claimed that as she was driving north on the Kenton-Marysville rd Sherwood backed out of a lane into the main highway resulting in the collision of her automobile with that driven by Sherwood. The defendant, Sherwood, claimed that the damages were caused by negligence on the part of the plaintiff's daughter who was driving the car. The case lasted three days starting Tuesday and ending yesterday with a two hours' deliberation by the jury when it was given the case.

Witnesses for the plaintiff were Cecil Alexander, W. E. Thompson, R. W. Mahrer, Dr. Moench, Dr. Edward Moench, Lewis Cooley, Emma Taylor and Edward Schultz. Witnesses for the defendants were Dr. E. M. Moench, Dr. Edward Moench, Dr. I. G. Moench, Mrs. Fred Moench, Walter Thompson, Jeff Mahrer, Leland Temple, Willard Coons, Mrs. Emma Taylor, Mrs. Louis Cooley, W. H. Pence, Mrs. Owen Sherwood and Carl Sherwood.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICE WILL BE HELD SUNDAY

Special Rites for Graduating Class Scheduled in Galion Church

Galion, May 21 Foremost among religious services Sunday will be the baccalaureate service for the class of 1927 which is scheduled to take place at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the high school building. Rev. W. O. Montague of the United Brethren Church, will deliver the sermon and has chosen as a topic for the graduates, "Philosophy For Life."

Several city ministers who are members of the ministerial association will assist with the devotionals for the service. Rev. Joseph Lamy of the Market Street Methodist Church will give the invocation, Rev. O. F. Thompson of the First Baptist, the scripture, and Rev. O. C. Kramer, First Lutheran, the prayer. Music for the occasion will be in charge of the organist and choir of the United Brethren Church.

Churches To Unite

All churches of the city will unite for the baccalaureate sermon according to custom and will hold regular services only in the morning.

At the Presbyterian Church Reverend Porter whose forceful sermons on famous Bible quotations have been eagerly received by large audiences, will use as his topic, "Go, Tell Peter." Mrs. R. O. Morgan, organist and music director will present the vested choir in suitable anthem numbers.

German Service

The regular semi-monthly German service led by Rev. Philip Auer is the feature of the scheduled morning worship at Peace Lutheran Church. Although the trend of church members is toward progressive methods in all work, these services in German are held for the benefit of many of the older people of the congregation. The choir will sing special chorals for the service. A mid week service will be held Thursday when Ascension day will be observed and the significance of the occasion made the subject of the address.

Rev. J. C. Thompson minister at the Baptist Church has for several weeks preached upon an interesting theme, "The Kingdom," dividing this general topic into two subjects, "The Kingdom of Heaven" and the "Kingdom of God." Four interesting sermons were given on the first group and Sunday morning the second of six discussions concerning the latter topic will be presented.

Study of Spirit

A comparative study of the spirit that actuates the church and the relative spirit that actuated the christian home will be made the basis of Rev. Montague's sermon for the congregation of United Brethren church.

"Onward to Christian Faith," a message of necessary conquest will be given by Rev. George F. Zinn, of the First Reformed Church, who will be assisted by the 30 voice vested choir, directed by Mrs. Harry Budd. During the week Reverend Zinn, Rev. D. B. Shue and Rev. John F. Winters, and two of the church elders, J. C. Berger and John Holl, will attend a two-day meeting of Central Ohio Classis at Waldo. Business meetings will have an important part and the Galion representatives are included on the program of speakers and committeemen.

A spirit of hopefulness will be prevalent in Rev. O. C. Kramer's address "The Secret of Joy" which first Lutheran members will hear, which with special musical numbers should make a beneficial and inspiring service.

Do we practice what we preach? Why do we think laws can make us do it?

LAST DAY OF SCHOOL GALA ONE AT IBERIA

Series of Ball Games and Cafeteria Dinner Are Outstanding Features

Iberia, May 21—The first session on the closing day of the Iberia school was a program given in the community hall by the grades. The program was in charge of Mr Miller, teacher of the fifth and sixth grades, as follows. Good Morning song recitations, "Vacation," "Mother's Speckled Ducklings," "Dog Under the Wagon," "When Dad Helped Wash the Dishes," "A Complaint" and "What I Have Learned." Two readings, one by Miss Margaret Kunze the other "Mother's Idea of Vacation" a play, "A Hard Test," was given by the third and fourth grades, a drill, by the fifth and sixth grades, a play "Fisherman's Luck," by three boys, a play, "Waiting for the Train," by a number of scholars. Miss Hazel Albright played a piano solo and Eugene Maddens played the mouth organ.

From the community hall the assemblage went to the high school grounds, where a very large crowd enjoyed a pot luck dinner served in cafeteria style.

The afternoon was spent socially and with ball games. The Juniors played first. Next the boys played the old men, one of the players was past 70. The score in this game was 13 to 6 in favor of the men. Clarence McClurg umpired this game.

The regular scheduled game was played by the High School team and the alumni team. The score was 6 to 4 in favor of the high school. Charles Curtis and T. L. Johnson umpired the game.

The high school volleyball girls played the alumni girls. The points were 30 to 18 in favor of the high school.

In the game with Mt. Gilead girls the points were 45 to 8 in favor of Iberia. The Iberia high school girls have not been defeated this season.

Stars Trim K. of P. Nine; Kiwanis Team Wins Over Postoffice; Shovels Cop

Three Teams Still Tied for First Place in Commercial Recreational Ball League; Stars and Kappas in Second Berth

RECREATIONAL teams representing the Marion Steam Shovel Office, Kiwanis and Eagles still head the Commercial League as a result of the second series of games last night. The Stars won the other tilt, defeating the K. of P. crew 7 to 1.

Here are the results:

M. S. S. Office 3, Isaly 0.

Eagles 8, Kappas 7 (eight innings.)

Star 7, K. of P. 1.

Kiwanis 8, Postoffice 4.

The Kappa Alpha Phis seem to have a mania for playing eight-inning games. After scoring seven runs in the third inning of the game last night and putting the fracas on ice, they blew up in the seventh stanza and allowed the Eagles to tie the score at seven all. In the extra inning the Eagles scored the winning run.

Eagles Win

Rank did the pitching for the Kappas with Wise catching. Gruber and Shirk were the winning batteries. The Eagles scored two runs in the third inning and three more in the fifth, then came from behind in the seventh to tie the count.

With Jacobs holding the K. of P. men to one hit, the Marion Stars last night defeated the fraternity outfit, 7 to 1, collecting a total of 10 hits off Willoughby. Hiett and Gibson led the Stars with the stick, each cracking out three hits. Watson and Hiett hit home runs.

McClintock completed the battery for the Stars with Severns catching for the K. of P. Fetter at shortstop for the Pythians accepted nine chances without a falter, having four putouts and five assists.

Dairies Lose

Isaly Dairies received seven hits while the Steam Shovel collected only five, but the latter team won the contest 3 to 0. Isalies had two errors and the Steam Shovels went through the tilt without a black mark.

Ward headed the batting list of the Shovels and made two runs and two hits. Vanderhoff of the Isaly nine received two hits but died on base while waiting for his teammates to help him cross the plate.

Clark and Wilson were the winning batteries with Zuspan and Wood on the mound and behind the plate for the Dairies.

Kiwanis Victors

Burson and Clark were the batteries for the winning Kiwanis outfit last night with Lingo on the mound and Long catching for the Postoffice. The Kiwanis scored in the first inning, counted three more in the third frame, and assayed four tallies in the fourth stanza. The Postoffice received three in the second inning and another in the fourth.

The games last night marked the second victories for the Steam Shovel, Kiwanis and Eagles.

CY WILLIAMS HITS THREE HOME RUNS

New York, May 21 Meet Cy Williams, the perennial home run hitter, folks—and don't laugh, because the grand old man of the Phillies is tied with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig for home run honors today with nine circuit clouts to his credit. Old Cy, who was hitting homers when Ruth was a pitcher, when Gehrig was a kindergarten pupil and when Rogers Hornsby was studying to be a stockbroker, clouted no less than three home runs in the Phillies-Cubs double header yesterday.

They push old Cy up to the plate in a wheel chair, the crowd heaves a sigh of pity for the tottering veteran, and then, zam—the horsehide is whistling over the right field fence. His slugging yesterday featured the Phils' 15 to 7 victory over the Reds after the Porkville crew had won the first game, 6 to 3, when Kelly hit for the circuit with the bases full.

ATHLETICS WILL PLAY MASSILLON SUNDAY

JACK SHARKEY FLOORS JIMMY MALONEY IN FIFTH ROUND; SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

Maloney Is Game to End of Battle; Sharkey Has Everything His Way from First Round to Finish; Maloney Unable To Get Single Round

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 21—Mr. Tunney meet Mr. Sharkey, Mr. Sharkey this is Mr. Tunney. You'll have to pardon [illegible] Mr. Tunney, yes I know he is looking it in your eye, but that's [illegible] his way. He'll be doing that anyway when you meet again in September.

For, after what happened under the nude, white glare of the ring lights at the Yankee Stadium last night, it was almost inevitable that Joseph Dundee, alias Jack Sharkey, and Gene Tunney, alias himself, will meet for the heavyweight championship of the world, before the end of the current season. Sharkey qualified for the shot beyond the most dubious chance last night when he knocked Jim Maloney stiffer than a tin roof after 52 seconds of stark sensationalism in the fifth round.

The man who had talked himself a great fight for weeks also had fought himself one, by way of variety, and today there was not a man the length and breadth of Broadway who failed to admit that such was the whole truth and nothing but. Sharkey probably included. He is a man who denies no virtue attributed him and perhaps that was the answer to the fact that last night's principals like it not at all. In fact, they hated with great cordiality.

But the great vendetta is over and the writer, among 50,000 other fortunates, saw it end with all the drama of a Belasco climax.

Maloney "Game"

Inert, lifeless and with drooling, gangling feet, Maloney was being dragged to his corner. It was the same corner in which Maloney had arisen from the last knockdown, game beyond belief, to face a waiting foeman, rush blindly toward him as soldiers sometimes rush to the mouths of cannon and fall sprawling in mid ring at Sharkey's feet, utterly out.

The fight was over but possibly a beautiful friendship was just beginning. For as they toted away all that was left of Jimmy Maloney, Sharkey suddenly became a man possessed. Fighting madly in the arms of his hammering seconds, he broke loose by main strength and rushed across the ring to lend a hand to the pallbearers. And as Maloney's deadened senses blinked into consciousness a minute later, Sharkey was there to offer the hand of one good fellow to another.

The dead past had buried its dead. The man who was merciless a few minutes before was all mercy now.

Sharkey Merciless

And Jack Sharkey had been merciless in cutting his fellow citizen of Boston down to the degree of a flustered, helpless apple woman. But while he was doing it, Sharky also was beautiful to behold, a boxer, a head slipper, a counter puncher and all the attributes that commend a man to those who like to see another punched on the vandyke.

Even more surprising was the fact that Sharkey, supposed to be an anaemic hitter, not only outstepped Maloney but outslugged him and that so-called punchless right of his did all the execution. It scored three knockdowns, all told, and the fourth went to Maloney, exclusively and without intention. That sprawl of his toward the man who had made him what he was probably had not been duplicated for sheer courage on the field of sport.

Irish Heroism

It made me think of epic legends they tell of Irish heroism, legends I accepted with the deprecating smile of one who knows better. But I saw one of them enacted by a fighting Irishman from South Boston last night and now I know that anything is possible.

Therefore, I give you James Maloney, the great big heart of the true fighting man who doesn't know when he is beaten and never will. I give you Jack Sharkey the distinction, if any, of being the most finished, complete combination of boxer and fighter I ever have seen.

The fight itself was all Sharkey after the first round which was even Maloney, therefore, didn't win a round. In fact, all he won altogether was the hearts of everyone who saw him lose. He simply was outclassed, given a boxing lesson in left handing and head slipping and then when he was well set, a punching lesson in right crosses.

First Round

The first round was the only one that proved a contest. They mixed it merrily from bell to bell. Maloney plying a left hook to the head and Sharkey countering with hard rights to the body. Toward the close of the round, Sharkey opened a cut over Maloney's left eye with two rights to that member but still it was almost impossible to call the winner at this point without doing one man or the other an injustice.

The second round opened auspiciously for Maloney, who scored with a series of lefts to the head. But Sharkey was riding the punches, a fact the crowd failed to comprehend. It was strictly a pro Maloney gathering and it thought it was seeing its man win. But the premature chant died down to a whisper when Sharkey rolled away from a lead and countered heartily with lefts and rights to the jaw.

Sharkey Uses Rights

Maloney slipped in an uppercut during the general excitement but Sharkey's reply was crackling rights to the jaw as James went back on his heels and blinked. A moment later, Sharkey claimed a foul and, while he was orating at the referee, Maloney rushed in and sloughed him plenty. This made him so miffed, that he carried the fight to Maloney right down to the bell.

The referee pulled Sharkey's rights down to start the third but the gesture became meaningless as the Lithuanian proceeded to left hand his man all over the premises. Toward the end of the session, he rolled away from a lead and countered with a right hand to the body that brought Maloney's leg up in pained astonishment.

James was being pretty well left handed through the first minute of the fourth when he suddenly decided to make his final, desperate play. Landing a left hook, he rushed Sharkey all the way across the ring to the ropes to shoot lefts and rights at his chin. But Jack came out of it, shot four more lefts to the chin without return and suddenly crossed a right to the jaw.

Bell Ringer

That was the bell ringer. It drove Maloney back on his heels and, as he drifted, a left hook and another right, clapped him down. Goofy, he came up

Caledonia Coach Resigns; Receives Several Offers

ALVIN C. BROHOLM

Coach Alvin C. Broholm Will Not Return Next Year

ALVIN C. BROHOLM, coach of the scholastic Caledonia High School basketball team last season, will not again be with that school during the coming year according to announcement made today.

Coach Broholm has received a number of offers from various schools among them being the Cleveland Boys school and state training school at Iowa.

Mr. Broholm came to Marion County last September from Union, In., where he had coached a high school squad for two years with extraordinary success. The Union boys won 30 out of 39 games while under the tutorage of Coach Broholm who is a Des Moines University and Pillsbury Academy all round athlete.

Wins 12 Out of 15

Mr. Broholm's Caledonia outfit won 12 out of 15 games last season, was champion of the Eastern Marion County League, and made a good showing in the Delaware Tournament. The team was composed of practically all green men at the start of the season but displayed splendid basketball ability at the end of the year.

Besides coaching at Caledonia, Mr. Broholm taught manual training and history.

He was popular among the students and a few days ago received a petition signed by all members of his basketball squad, as well as other students, to consider staying another year.

MANSFIELD PREPARES FOR RACE MEETING

Short Ship Circuit To Open in That City Week of June 12

Mansfield, May 21—Constant improvement, both in the caliber of racing and in facilities for handling the throng of light harness horse lovers, who always make Mansfield their headquarters during the week of racing here, has been the motto of the Mansfield Driving club since its organization three years ago.

With this motto ever in mind, the Driving club has succeeded in holding some of the most successful meetings in the Ohio Short Ship circuit. In past years and railbirds in this locality are anticipating the greatest single week of racing in the history of the organization when the horsemen and their steeds gather here for the week of June 12.

Charles L. Hartenfels, secretary of the club stated today that more than 200 horses would be in quarters here for the entire week and he believes that every race on the week's program will be well filled with a predominance of grand circuit horses. Horsemen have written the secretary commenting upon the decision of the local club to race under the Longwood plan and they are also enthusiastic about the meeting.

SETS NEW RECORD

New York, May 21—George Fissler of the New York A. C. today held a new world's record of 1:10 3.5 for the 100 meter back stroke swim. Competing in an A. A. U. carnival here, Fissler broke the former record by four-fifths of a second.

Visitors Strongest Team to Appear Here So Far This Season; Locals Ready

Manager Bacon Announces Starting Lineup with Taylor in Right Field; Reese To Be Used as Relief Pitcher for Main If Needed

THE Marion Athletics will meet the strongest baseball outfit to appear here so far this season Sunday afternoon, when they stack up against the Massillon crew playing under the name of the Scaler Hamilton Lumber Co. That is, and under the management of L. Jones of the Massillon Maroons.

The Athletics have been playing heads up baseball during the last two games and they will need all their ability to cope with the visitors on Sunday. The locals' victims to date have been the Springfield Millard Cleaners and Sandusky Chinks.

Manager Bacon today announced his starting lineup for Sunday's battle, using Taylor who made his debut here against the Sandusky Chinks, in the right field garden. Rowen and Price will be the other two men in the outfield with Reese as a relief pitcher to step in in case that young gentleman gets in need of any assistance.

Infield

Conroy at first, Bacon at second, Rizer at short, and Buckland on third will complete the infield lineup. Main will be on the mound with Harn on the receiving end.

Those who know the caliber of athletic teams produced in Massillon will not hesitate to tell their friends that one of the greatest exhibitions of baseball on a local field is due Sunday. The Massillon outfits coming here is the best semi pro team on that city.

The visitors have not lost a game this season and will come here with the expectations of keeping the slate clean.

The game will be called at 2:30 with E. C. Mackan acting as umpire.

HARDING JUNIORS WIN OVER VOCATIONALS

Evans and Walker Are Winning Batteries in Postponed Game

The Harding High Juniors last night trimmed the Vocationals 9 to 7 in a postponed game on the Harding High diamond.

Evans and Walker were the winning batteries with Walker and Shoemaker holding down those positions for the Vocationals.

The Vocationals have not yet won a game in the high school league which is headed now by the Faculty. The leading team has won four games and suffered no defeats.

STATE MICHIGAN MEET

Columbus, May 21 — Rivalry of years' standing will be renewed here this afternoon at Ohio State Stadium when the Buckeye track squad meets Michigan's Wolverines in the annual joint track meet. Fifteen major events will be featured with chief interest centering in the sprints, in which Michigan is given a slight edge by the experts.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT SHARKEY FIGHT STARTS ON PAGE 12

without a count and it might have ended forthwith but the bells voice split the din and the stricken man was saved for the nonce.

I never exactly knew what a nonce was until last night. It consists I now learn of 52 seconds.

Wildly they worked over Maloney in his corner and wildly he came out at the bell for the fifth round.

He came with a great rush, intended to convey the impression that all was well. However, Sharkey measured him with a right counter to the body. Then, a moment later, he hooked another right behind Maloney's ear and James went down. He was as much pulled down as knocked. Maybe it wasn't an official knockdown at all but that hardly matters.

Socks Him Again

What did matter very much was that in the next minute of play, Sharkey crossed another right to the chin and Jim thumped backward to the floor, his head catching a strand of the lower ropes. There, he hung through a count of four but he wasn't through yet. No, this pitiful man meant to rise again to face a pitiless foe and proved it by struggling to his knees.

There he waited for the count of eight, then weaved upright, located his man and started toward him with the rush of a bull moose. But the hunter's bullet took effect before he reached the goal he sought and so he fell not to rise again of his own volition, beaten but a hero forever.

A great fighter had lost and a greater fighter had won.

BEHIND THE SCREEN

ABOUT six or seven years ago, if you can remember, there appeared on the screen a little girl, Peaches Jackson, as a little actress, in such motion pictures as "The Prince Chap" with Thomas Meighan and Pied Piper Malone. But seven years of life makes an enormous difference in the growing, and the cute little girl of then is a grown-up young lady today. Motion picture acting has ceased to be the most important aim of Peaches Jackson's life. In fact, she is thinking seriously now about getting married and settling down.

But to keep the honors in the family, along comes Peaches' little sister, four-year-old Mary Ann, to delight film fans. She started with a film company about a year ago in a series of domestic comedies and stole one picture after another from the grown-up actors. Her winsome, entertaining tricks gained much popularity for her and she will now have stories written expressly for her own saucy little person. "The Jimmy Smiths" is the name of the domestic series in which little Miss Jackson is appearing.

Laura La Plante has a brand new contract for five years with the Universal Film Corporation. Her first picture under their direction will be "Silk Stockings."

Vilma Banky and Rod LaRoque deserve the laurel wreath for being one film pair to come right out and admit their engagement.

Russia has invited Charlie Chaplin to come there and produce films by the state film trust. "We will greet you with open arms," declares Russia.

"Wind" is the name of Lillian Gish's new starring chicle. Lars Hanson has the leading male role opposite her.

Lya de Putti, Europe's celebrated moving picture actress, is enroute to Hollywood to play the starring role in "The Midnight Rose."

"George Washington" is to be the title of a new million-dollar film that Cecil B. DeMille will produce.

Lon Chaney's next picture, "Terror," is based on the Siberian Red revolution.

Much discussion is centered around a German film entitled "Secrets of a Soul," presented recently in New York. The story is based upon the theory of Dr. French, the famous psychologist and deals with a man who is half maddened with delusions. Certainly a unique field for screen production.

First National Pictures has started court action against Metro-Goldwin Mayer to restrain that company from producing on the screen Max Rheinhardt's "The Miracle."

Madge Bellamy, who just signed a five-year contract with the Fox Film Corporation, is chosen to play the lead in "Colleen."

The producers who are responsible for such comedies as "McFadden's Flats" and "The Cohens and the Kelleys" are now working now on "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath."

Holland Furnace Co. Perfects Suction Cleaner Which Removes All Dust and Soot from Heating Plants

The Holland Furnace Co. in perfecting its new suction cleaner have taken a tremendous step forward in the modern cleaning method for all types of heating systems. This wonderful new method for removing all accumulations of dirt, soot, dust, etc., from all types of heating plants, including warm air, steam, vapor or hot water, has been developed and perfected by the Holland Furnace Co., largest installers of warm air heating plants in the world. This machine is a big vacuum suction outfit that pulls all the dirt and soot out of pipes, flues, casings and registers directly into the big bag and carries it all away. It does all this without raising any dust or dirt in the home, makes all types of heating plants more efficient, removes germ laden dust, shows up all possible weaknesses or fire hazards in heating systems and helps keep the dirt and dust that circulates through the home and which soils walls, curtains and hangings.

Soot and dirt cut down the circulation of heat and decrease the efficiency of the heating plant. A government report states that every one-eighth inch of soot cuts down the heating quantities of a furnace 28 per cent.

The cost of Holland suction cleaning is very little more than the old time method of cleaning by hand, and the feature of this system is that the chimney as well as the heating plant, is thoroughly cleaned.

H. O. Nearhood, branch manager and heating engineer in this city, is also in charge of the furnace repair department, and advises everyone to take advantage of his experience in the heating industry and to call him in for advice on furnace repairs and service.

A. H. Landwehr, president of the Holland Furnace Co. says — "Every customer must be satisfied." The Holland Furnace Co. is directly responsible to you guaranteeing in writing satisfactory operation of the heating plants installed by its engineers.

Above is shown large suction cleaner apparatus of Holland Furnace Co., with which heating plants are cleaned of dirt and soot without raising dust in house.

A recent ad in the Literary Digest stated that "your family and your guests may choose their food or clothing but are obliged to breathe the air in your home—whether it is warm or cold, moist or dry, circulated or stagnant, healthful or unhealthful.

Perfect System

The perfect heating system is one that guarantees uniform temperature in coldest weather, that circulates the air throughout all the rooms that cleanses and tempers it with moisture. The Holland vaporized warm air circulating system, although moderate in price, does all these things with a surprising economy of fuel.

The local Holland engineer is always ready to figure the requirements of the home it is desired to heat, and he is always ready to advise on any heating problems. A telephone call to his office, which is located at 153 Vine St., Phone No. 2178, will receive an immediate response.

New Humidifier

The Holland furnace is now equipped with an automatic humidifying system that does away with the old style water pan.

Modern doctors claim that the air in the home should have a relative humidity of at least 40 per cent. With the Holland humidifying system it is possible to evaporate as high as 20 gallons of water in 24 hours thereby raising the relative humidity to the proper point in the home. Another nice feature is when ashes are removed they are wet, thus doing away with all dust and dirt.

MORTGAGE BUSINESS IN COUNTY SHOWS INCREASE

Small Decline in Real Estate Transfers Shown in Recorder's Office

Mortgage transactions in Marion county registered an increase last week and there was a small decline in real estate dealings, according to a summary shown by the books at the county recorder's office.

Forty-five mortgages were filed, representing loans amounting to $101,658.47, all but a small percentage of which was on property in the city of Marion. There were 41 mortgages amounting to $97,260.47 on city real estate and only five totaling $4,425 on country and village properties.

Preceding Week

During the preceding week 38 mortgages amounting to $92,642.79 were filed, the division being $70,402.79 on city property and $22,240 on country and village property.

Of the loans made last week, $80,100 came from local building and loan companies, $9,700 from banks and $11,885.47 from individuals. The bank loans included a $1,500 mortgage on a farm in Pleasant Township issued to the Federal Farm Loan Bank.

Real Estate Changes

There were 35 real estate transfers during the week, seven less than the preceding week. A list of transfers follows:

W. H. Baker and others to James M. Baker, three lots in Marion, $1.

Glen H. Bodley and others to Karl W. Schell, lot in Marion, $1.

George S. Bahn, by executor, to J. E. Morton, lot in Marion, $1.

Marion Sand & Gravel Plant

Marion Sand & Gravel Co. Supplying Large Part of Material for Nearby Roads

New Plant Designed by L. K. Warner and W. H. Symes Makes Possible Huge Volume of Business; Experts Say Concern Has Model Plant

Material for a large part of the road and building construction work in this section of the state is now being produced at the new plant of the Marion Sand & Gravel Co., which was recently completed under the direction and supervision of L. K. Warner, president of the company, and W. H. Symes, secretary and superintendent.

The plant, located on the company's 39-acre tract of gravel land about three miles west of the city, was designed entirely by Warner and Symes, all of the details being worked out on the basis of their engineering training and their years of experience in the sand and gravel business.

Called Model Plant

Experts who have inspected the plant pronounce it a model in every respect and one of the most efficient in the country.

From the time that the gravel and deposit is taken from the pit until it is finally separated into four different grades of material and placed in the huge bins of the plant ready for transfer to railway cars or trucks, the mechanism operates as one unit.

The operation is continuous, beginning with the dipping of gravel and sand from the pit by an excavator dipper suspended from a cable, moving from the pit to the plant hopper, where it dumps its load and then returns to pick up another. The loading and unloading process continues throughout the day with amazing speed and smoothness, giving the plant a production capacity of 500 tons during 10 hours of operation.

Removes Boulders

The hopper removes all of the larger stones and boulders and the sand and gravel is then carried to the cleaning plant over an automatic belt conveyor running up an incline about 200 feet in length. After going through a washing and screening process in the cleaning plant, the material is finally deposited in four separate sections of the bin, having been transformed into two grades of gravel and two grades of sand.

New Plant Necessary

Construction of the new plant became necessary because of the steadily increasing business of the company, which is now supplying an extensive wholesale trade not only in Marion County but in a territory which includes points 50 miles from here.

Although the new plant has increased the company's production capacity about 60 per cent, it requires less than half of the operating force used to run the old equipment. Only three men are needed to take care of the actual operations and they do only supervisory work, no man power being needed to run the mechanism from the time that it is started in motion until it is shut down at the close of the day.

This week the new plant was completely equipped with electric lighting facilities which will enable the company to operate at night. It is planned to run two 10-hour shifts daily in order to take care of the increasing business.

The highest class product coming from the plant is its mason sand, used in plaster work and other construction requiring an especially fine grade of material. The mason sand of the Marion Sand & Gravel Co., is said to have few equals.

The Marion Sand & Gravel Co. was incorporated in 1919 and has operated steadily since that time. Its 39-acre tract, underlaid with a 44-foot vein of sand and gravel, was originally known as the Patton gravel pit.

The company has its up-town office in the Barnhart building on E. Center st.

And that dog tells me lots of things—when his master is going to be away and he on guard at the house; at what hour the family goes to bed; how to push open the barnyard gate with my paw, and so on. And the funniest part of it all is that he has no idea that he is giving away secrets! Now Towser thinks the world of his master, would have his head chopped off for him if it would do him any good—and I make believe I love his master, too, and want to know all these things so that I can help his beloved Two-Legs when the time comes. But that is only what I tell him. I really want to know so that I can creep into the barnyard some fine night when Towser's master is away and Towser on guard at the house, push open the gate with my paw and steal a chicken or two. And that foolish dog who told me how to do it will never even guess that it is I."

See those For Sale Ads? Well that's the way we will get our vacation money.

We can sell that tent, hot plate, phonograph, and that other camping equipment that we no longer need, to someone who will be glad to get it and who will pay CASH for the bargain.

Mary has outgrown her bike — it's practically new and would make some little girl happy. Let's sell it and get the cash.

Let's put a little ad in the Star. All you have to do is to phone it.

We'll get enough out of selling those things to take us on a splendid trip.

You can do likewise. The attic is your treasure chest. Seek out those sleeping dollars and

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

New cabbage, which is becoming more scarce each day due to the flood conditions in the south, took a jump of three cents a pound this morning. It is now being offered at 15 cents, an unusually high price for shipped in cabbage. Green peas showed a drop of two cents this morning while leaf lettuce was quoted at 25 cents, a drop of five cents over the price of yesterday.

The markets this morning were well supplied with practically all kinds of seasonable vegetables in anticipation of the usual Saturday heavy buying. A drop of five cents in cauliflower was announced this morning.

Plenty of Kentucky strawberries were in market this morning and were being offered at 25 cents. The berries were of unusual quality and found ready buyers.

No change in prices with a steady demand was the report from local meat markets.

Business Leaders' Confidence Stimulates Buying of Stocks on Exchange

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks, strong; industrial stocks, strong; domestic bonds, firm; foreign bonds, firm; grain, irregular; copper, reactionary; oil, weak, cotton, steady; rubber, steady, sugar, steady; pig iron, steady, foreign exchange, steady.

New York, May 21—In spite of heavy profit taking and professional selling, the forward movement in the standard industrial railroad and public utility stocks continued aggressively at the beginning of trading today. Confidence expressed by business leaders stimulated confident buying of stocks in all the principal investment centers of the country, and buying orders flowed into Wall street in a steady stream.

The week-end business reviews pointed out that the handicaps of the floods, earthquakes, coal strikes and other unfavorable factors had not served to disrupt general business. Bank clearings this week were the highest in history for the third week in May, and car loadings show a considerable increase over the same period a year ago. The representative industrial corporations have been piling up huge surpluses in the form of cash, securities or new productive machinery, and the enormous volume of investment buying has swept the market bare of a great part of its "floating supply" of dividend stocks.

With the bulls more firmly established in the market leadership than at any time since the middle of last year, stocks were snapped up in small and large blocks, ranging all the way from 100 to 10,000 shares at a single sale.

Houston Oil and Pittsburgh & West Virginia railroad, two of the outstanding speculative performers of the week, carried their price gains to new peaks. Pittsburgh & West Virginia at 156 1-2 has scored a 32 point gain for the week, while Houston Oil above 142 was up 10 for the week and up 82 for the movement. International Nickel raced along at break neck speed, to score a new high record at 62, up about 20 points on the move.

Women have found that the way to get a silent man to talk is not to say anything themselves for a long time. He gets nervous.

CONTROVERSY DEVELOPS AT HOME HEARING

Former Marion Man Absolved by Children During Investigation at Columbus

Friction developed yesterday in investigation of alleged mistreatment of children at the Franklin County Children's Home, which is under the management of Carl Digel, former superintendent of the Marion County Home when officials in charge of the probe clashed over methods of questioning juvenile witnesses.

The investigation is being conducted by representatives of the Franklin County board of visitors, trustees of the children's home and an official of the state division of charities.

Objects to Crowd

Immediately after the hearing was called to order, yesterday, Miss Belle Graves, superintendent of the division of charities, objected to the children being called in before a large crowd of investigators which would appear to be, in effect, a court.

"It is our contention," she stated, "that much more could be accomplished if a representative of each body would question these youngsters rather than have them tell their stories to a large body."

After spirited arguments, the investigating board voted against Miss Greve's proposal and proceeded with the probe along the original lines.

Cause of Probe

Death of Rosemary Denson, 12, in the Children's hospital at Columbus on May 10 after she had been removed from the home, was the primary cause of the investigation. It is charged that the girl developed a cerebral abscess after having been slapped by an employe of the home and was not given proper care afterward.

Testimony is being introduced to show that if children at the home have actually been mistreated it has been due to misconduct on the part of employes and does not involve Superintendent Digel.

Boy Testifies

Kenneth Shelling, 14, a ward of the home, was the first to take the witness stand yesterday. He described in detail the various duties he is required to perform and said that they are not particularly hard.

The boy said that he had never heard Superintendent Digel threaten any children. He had been slapped on several occasions, he stated, but added that in some instances he had probably done something to warrant a whipping.

Young Shelling testified that employes of the home had whipped him for infraction of the rules which should have been reported to the superintendent for correction. He declared that Digel never told boys of the home that if they did not behave he would send them to the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster.

BUILDING THIS YEAR MAY ESTABLISH RECORD

First Four Months of 1927 Set Mark Well Above Usual Volume

Washington, May 21—Construction operations this year stand a fine chance to break all previous records. This is indicated by statistics compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America.

Not only have the first four months of 1927 set a mark which is well above any recorded by the volume of operations under way during a similar period in any year on record, but observations show a large amount of building is contemplated for the near future.

Record Volume

The volume of contracts awarded during March was the greatest ever recorded for that month. As a matter of fact, only one month—August, 1926—has reached a higher figure in the past.

The March volume of contracts awarded was 56 per cent greater than the corresponding volume for February and 10 per cent greater than the figure on record for March, 1926.

Special significance is being attached to these figures by experts who point to the fact that the volume of operations recorded for 1926 was the greatest shown by any previous year.

The volume of contracts awarded last month reached the 260 level on a scale which places the 1913 average at 100 as its basis.

The volume of awards made during the first three months of 1927 exceeded by five per cent the volume recorded during the corresponding period in 1926.

FORMER MARION WOMAN STRICKEN NEAR RADNOR

Miss Florence Retterer, 39, Dies at Home of Sister; Funeral Sunday

Miss Florence Retterer, 39, who until recently made her home at 437 Park-blvd, died at 6 o'clock last night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Columber of one mile north of Radnor. She had undergone an abdominal operation six months ago, and did not regain her health.

Miss Retterer was born in Richland Township Aug. 20, 1887 and was the daughter of Mary Anna Hinamon and George Retterer, Jr., both deceased. She had been employed as a domestic here for several years. She was a member of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Richland Township.

Surviving are her sister, Mrs. Columber, two brothers, Allen Lee Retterer of West Mansfield, John G. Retterer of Prospect, and three half-brothers, C. G. and Frank Retterer, 437 Park-blvd, and Benjamin Retterer of Prospect.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at her sister's home with Rev. H. E. Williams, pastor of Oakland Evangelical Church, in charge. Burial will be in the St. Paul's Lutheran Church Cemetery at Richland Township.

Capacity Audiences Hear Concerts by Grade Schools at Chautauqua Pavilion

More Than 3,000 Attend Afternoon and Night Presentations Directed by Howard M. Temple, Supervisor of Music; 450 Children Take Part

Marked interest in the musical progress of children of Marion Public Schools, was shown in the two capacity audiences in attendance at the first annual concert presented by the schools under the direction of Howard M. Temple, supervisor of music here, yesterday afternoon and last night at Chautauqua Pavilion, Garfield Park. Approximately 3,200 persons attended the two presentations.

The concert was a combined program consisting of a group of numbers by the grade school orchestra of 90 pieces, and a pageant, "Childhood of Hiawatha" sung by children of the grade school glee clubs. It was the first program of its nature ever produced here and included 450 children, one of the largest groups of city school pupils ever to be presented in a program here at one time.

Especially noteworthy were the beautiful vocal numbers sung by members of the glee clubs, whose voices showed a beauty and power, the result of conscientious study and careful training.

Comparatively New

The institution of grade school orchestra here was a comparatively new project this year but the splendid program produced by them last night, proved it to have been undoubtedly successful.

The program as a whole rivaled that presented by Harding High School students, also under Mr. Temple's direction, one week ago.

The children were uniformly attired in outfits of black and white, making a very attractive picture with the platform, decorated with flags and flowers, as a background. Their first number was "The Star Spangled Banner" sung by the glee club with orchestra accompaniment.

The most beautiful number of the orchestral group was "Festival", overture by Emil Ascher. They were also heard in a march, "Our Heroes" by Ascher and a novelty number, "The Haunted House" a descriptive fantasia by Lafferty in which the parading of ghosts and a ghost dance at midnight was cleverly presented in music.

The pageant, "Childhood of Hiawatha" with words by Longfellow and music by Ira B. Wilson, included 11 beautiful numbers, sung from memory by the children's chorus, Miss Marion McNeil playing their accompaniment on the piano.

Two well-received selections were "Once a Warrior, Very Angry" and "When He Heard the Owls", sung by the boys in unison. "Minnewawa Said the Pine Trees" sung with soprano and alto parts by the girls, made an attractive contrast.

Opening Numbers

The pageant opened with "By the Shores of Gitchee Gumee" sung by a two-part chorus of boys and girls. "Many Things Nokomis Taught Him" was sung by the girl sopranos and "The Rainbow," a beautiful selection, by the girls, with both alto and soprano voices. Other numbers sung by the girls' two-part chorus were "Hiawatha's Brothers" and "Forth Into the Forest" with "The Bow and Arrows" as a special selection for boys.

The program closed with "The Red Deer" sung by the entire group and "The Banquet," the latter being perhaps the most appreciated and beautiful number of the group.

Assisting Mr. Temple were John Parshall, Stanley Schlanger and Harold Rider, orchestra assistants. Pianos were furnished by the Piano Department of the Paddock Transfer & Storage Co. and decorations through the courtesy of the Uhler-Phillips Co. under the direction of Glen Duffey.

ERIE SUPERVISORS HOLD REGULAR MONTHLY MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the Erie Supervisors' Club was held last night in the basement of the Epworth M. E. Church.

After the dinner, served by the women of the church, the regular business meeting was held. It was decided that the monthly meetings be discontinued during the summer months.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a picnic to be held later in the season, the time and place to be decided upon by the committee. A number of talks were given by those present.

EUROPEAN PASSPORTS TO SOLVE VISA NUISANCE

Paris, May 22—European passports to solve the visa nuisance have been proposed by the Paris newspaper, "L'Ere Nouvelle."

According to the suggestion European countries would sign an agreement setting up an inter-European passport committee in every capital. Passports issued by the committees would be valid for all countries having adhered to the agreement. Special visas would be required for all other countries.

The newspaper considers the suggestion just as feasible as the International Postal Convention.

COMMISSION IS DEFENDANT IN DAMAGE ACTION

Richard D. Osborn Seeks $1,200 as Workman's Compensation

Suit against the industrial commission of Ohio was filed in the common pleas court yesterday, by Richard D. Osborn, in which he asks judgment for $1,200 which he says is due him as a workman's compensation payment for injuries received in an accident at the Power Manufacturing Co. plant.

The accident occurred on Jan. 22, 1926, according to the petition. Osborn says that he was unable to work for 67 weeks and a claim for workman's compensation covering 64 weeks of that period was filed with the industrial commission.

Claim Is Refused

The commission refused to allow the claim on the grounds that Osborn was not injured in "the course of his employment," the petition states.

In his account of the accident, Osborn says that he was fastening a flywheel by clamping it on the table of a large vertical boring mill when his wrench slipped, precipitating him from the table to the floor. His back and spinal cord were injured, the petition states.

Osborn says that he was 35 years of age when the accident occurred and was earning an average of $32.73 a week. The workmen's compensation law, the petition states, entitled him to remuneration from the state commission at the rate of $18.75 a week.

The petition was filed as an appeal from the commission's ruling. Homer E. Johnson is attorney for Osborn.
